has been completed and erection of the beams started. The roof is expected to be completed in two months.

Fieldhouse Outline Rising

Steel workers for Pigeon-Thomas Construction Company of Memphis began work on the superstructure of the High School fieldhouse roof Monday.

Two large jutting interlaced steel triangular sections were in place.

It is expected to take 40 days to erect and weld the superstructure of the Lamella steel roof structure, Lennie Whitworth, engineer for Buchmueller, Whitworth &

Foust, architects and engineers, said.

The structure of the roof will be completed earlier but welding will have to be completed before the roof deck and roofing material can be applied.

The roof is designed to lace together to stresses and hinge them on the steel tension ring and concrete circular walls.

The roof deck will consist of insul rock, a wood fiber and cement under pressure, which will form an insulation and give structural support to the roof.

To the deck, a rubberized synthetic overlay will be applied.

The roof is expected to be completed in three months. Duct work, electrical work, pouring of the concrete floor and application of the floor overlay will be started then.

The building is expected to be completed before January. Roofway bleachers to seat more than 4,000 persons will be installed.

CONSTRUCTION WORKERS for Pigeon Thomas Construction Company of Memphis, prepare to place a section of the steel roof superstructure in place at the high school fieldhouse.

INTERLACED STEEL beams form the superstructure for the roof of the high school fieldhouse. A strike at Pigeon Thomas Construction Company of Memphis delayed delivery and erection of the roof.

Czechs Win Truce With Soviets

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Czechoslovakia's liberal leaders and their orthodox Communist critics agreed today on a declaration of principles that will permit the Czechoslovak liberalization to continue, unofficial sources reported.

Leaders of the Communist parties of the Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany, Hungary, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia agreed on the declaration in a meeting lasting a little more than two hours in this capital of reported today.

Francis is charged with threatening a man's life, carrying a dangerous weapon, assault and general way and makes no specific mention of this country's liberal course.

The party leaders were scheduled to sign it at the City Hall this afternoon.

Following the meeting, the leaders of the six parties placed wreaths on a monument to 7,000 Soviet soldiers who died in the liberation of Slovakia in World War II.

There were no security precautions during the ceremony and the party leaders, including the Leonid I. Brezhnev of the Soviet Union, mingled freely with the crowds.

There were shouts of "Long live friendship with the Soviet Union" and "Long live Dubcek." The latter was a reference to Alexander Dubcek,

Francis cut his wrist when the door was shattered and required treatment at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital. He was treated and released and taken into custody at 10 p.m. by Police.

In other activity, Edward C. Graham, Charleston, was charged Friday with careless and imprudent driving. The car he was driving struck an automobile driven by John D. Gallagher, 411 Sikes, Thursday at Kentucky and Broadway, police reported.

Automobiles driven by Spencer Addison, 43, 108 Broadway, and Bernadine Seyer, 18, 406 Dorothy, were involved in an accident at 9:30 a.m. Thursday on East Gladys near the new fieldhouse construction site, police reported. No charges were filed.

include a Soviet promise not to interfere with Czechoslovakia's liberalization drive in exchange for Czechoslovak pledges to remain firmly in the Communist camp.

Three members of the Soviet delegation including Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin made a surprise appearance outside the meeting compound prior to the start of the talks.

They smiled as they were mobbed by camera men and walked down the hill from the meeting place to the Danube River.

They declined to answer newsmen's questions and after about two minutes returned to the compound to begin the meeting.

It included the leaders of the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria.

A mood of optimism swept the country following statements by Czechoslovak party chief Alexander Dubcek that the liberalization drive would continue.

Czechoslovak and Soviet leaders worked out the basis for the agreement in 3 1/2 days or talks earlier this week at Cierna, a Slovak railroad town near the Soviet frontier.

As the meeting ended, the month-long flow of propaganda against Czechoslovakia's liberalization course from Moscow and other hard-line Communist countries stopped and Prague's news media halted their counterfire.

Earthquake Rocks Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An earthquake struck Mexico City and a wide area of the country Friday, leaving at least four persons dead, scores injured and an estimated $2.4 million in damages.

The 7.2-second quake was the worst to hit this one-and-a-half mile high city in 11 years.

Hardest hit in the capital was a nine-story office building on Insurgentes Avenue that was left leaning crazily. Police said the structure and nine others would have to be demolished because they might collapse.

14 Contesting for Congress Seat Stirs Interest in Primaries

BENTON - In Tuesday's primary elections interest in Southeast Missouri centers on the race for representative from the 10th congressional district.

Eleven candidates seek the Democratic nomination and three the Republican nomination. Winners will represent their parties in the November general election.

Democratic candidates are Winston V. Buford, Eminence; Thad Bullock, Cape Girardeau; Bill D. Burlison, Cape Girardeau; John Havis, Sikeston; Jay Mondy, Fisk; Harry L. Patterson, Flat River; Edward Robb, Perryville; Bob Robinson, Cape Girardeau; B. F. Rogers, Caruthersville; State Rep. David Rowling, Charleston, and Jim Wallace, Scott City.

Republicans seeking the nomination are William Carhart, Alton; Thomas J. Cox, Poplar Bluff, and Vernon H. Landgraf, Cape Girardeau.

Congressman Paul C. Jones of Kennett, a Democrat, is not seeking re-election.

There are 14,598 registered voters in the county, about the same number as in 1966, the last primary election, where there was a 48 per cent voter turnout.

In the Democratic primary in Scott County there are contests for state representative from the 16th district, county judge of the first and second districts, sheriff, coroner, committeeman from Keleso and Sylvania townships and committeewoman from Richland township.

Each candidate in the Republican primary for county offices is unopposed.

In the 15th district state representative race Rep. Marvin E. Proffer of Jackson is opposed by Dean Wadlington of Scott City. The district includes portions of Scott and Cape Girardeau counties.

County Judge J. E. Childress of Sikeston is challenged by Nadean Dickerson of Sikeston for county judge of the first district.

In the race for county judge from the second district County Judge Bob Davis of Benton is opposed by Ray Evans of Oran and E. K. Riggs of Scott City.

In the sheriff's contest Sheriff John Dennis, Benton, is opposed by Lynn Ingram and Bill Proffer, both of Sikeston. Ingram is circuit clerk.

For coroner incumbent Gene Nunnelee of Sikeston is opposed by John E. Carpenter of Sikeston.

Candidates for committeeman of Keleso township are Karl Von Kessel, Chaffee, and Kenneth Raney, Illmo. Candidates for committeewoman of Sylvania township are Paul J. Crader, Oran, and Kyroum M. Streeter, Panton.

Three are seeking the nomination for committeewoman of Richland township: Mrs. C. E. Felker, Mrs. Mary L. Isaacs and Mrs. Sue E. Shumpratt, all of Sikeston.

Unopposed Democratic candidates are:

State Sen. A. M. Spradling Jr., Cape Girardeau, state senator from the 27th district; Rep. Tony Heckemeyer, Sikeston, state representative from the 15th district; Tom Gilmore, Sikeston, prosecuting attorney; Assessor Alfred A. Haker, Benton, assessor; public administrator Robert Hodge Decker, Sikeston, public administrator; surveyor Charles R. Waters, Sikeston, surveyor.

Lambert, Sikeston, committeewoman, Sikeston ward 4, precinct 2.

Two Killed in Southeast Missouri

Two were killed Friday night in Southeast Missouri traffic accidents. The victims were John Frances Wilson, 50, Cape Girardeau and Richard Schindler, 21, St. Louis.

Wilson, driver of a 1963 Volkswagen, stopped his car on highway 67 at 10:25 p.m., one half mile north of Poplar Bluff.

Wilson's car stalled and as the truck went around the car, he stepped into the path of the truck and was run over by a 1966 IHC Strickland tractor-trailer, driven by Kenneth Glover, 45, Conway, Ark.

The body was taken to Greer-Croy-Fitch Funeral Home in Poplar Bluff and transferred to Steinhausen - Haman Funeral Home in Cape Girardeau.

Schindler, a passenger in a 1966 Ford, driven by Mark Robben, 20, Richmond Heights, was killed at 11:40 p.m., on highway 21, one mile south of Bellview in Iron county.

Another passenger, Linda Hoerig, 19, St. Louis, received a fractured foot and was taken to St. Marys hospital in Ironton. The driver was not injured.

Schindler's body was taken to White Funeral Home in Ironton, and transferred to Drehrmann - Harrol Funeral Home in St. Louis.

The car was rounding a curve when the driver lost control, ran off the road and struck a bridge. Today at 12:30 a.m., on highway 61, three miles south of Sikeston, Louis Curtis, 37, Matthews, was injured and a bridge damaged.

He was driving a 1965 Ford, lost control and struck a bridge. He received cuts on his face, and was taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Cat Sought-May Be Rabies Carrier

The family of Mr. and Mrs. George Andition Sr., 112 Cardin Drive, has issued an appeal to anyone knowing the whereabouts of a half grown black and white cat, which lived near 207 South Kingshighway and Trotter street.

Their son, George Andition, seven, was bitten by the animal when he picked it up after it fought two dogs. Two unidentified boys on bicycles were followed by the dogs and believed to be their owners.

The Andition boy was given a rabies shot and his parents want to find the cat, in order to determine whether it had rabies.

Unless its condition is diagnosed young Andition must take 14 rabies shots.

Congress Sets Work Aside Until Sept. 4

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, with its disputes still unsettled on foreign aid, firearms and Abe Fortas, has taken a month-long pause to prepare for the fight at the polls this fall.

Lawmakers failed Friday in an all-out push to finish work on a foreign aid package before halting for the national political conventions. The Senate and the House recessed until Sept. 4, two days after Labor Day.

In a final flurry of action, Congress sent the White House a broader poultry inspection-program and a flock of lesser measures. But the foreign aid bill, already fixed roughly at $1 billion below what President Johnson wants, became bogged down in a minor argument over log exports.

Candidate Impact on GOP Delegates Gains Significance

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The battle for the Republican presidential nomination is about to shift from arguments over polls and estimates of delegate strength to the personal impact of the two top contenders.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon are ready to present their individual credentials to the politicians and the impact they make could have more to do with the result than everything controversial that has gone before.

Is Nixon who lost by an eyelash in 1960 to John F. Kennedy, sufficiently rehabilitated politically to be trusted with this year's nomination?

Or should the party pick Rockefeller, a sometime renegade, as its standardbearer in a topsy turvy year?

There is almost no serious thought among outlanders in this sweltering convention city that Gov. Ronald Reagan of California could wind up with the nomination.

While the nation awaited the two major candidates' face-down with something less than the excitement attendant to pro football, a great deal of not very effectual politicking was going on behind the scenes here.

Nixon supporters were putting on the pressure to get southern delegates to hold the line against any early ballot break toward Reagan.

In addition the Nixon people were trying to encourage a break away from favorite sons who were displaying a fresh determination to take a good look at the situation before committing themselves.

Among these Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio remained an inscrutable holdout. Nobody could forecast where Gov. George Romney might try to lead his Michigan delegation or where Gov. Spiro T. Agnew would take Maryland.

Backers of Reagan, who says he isn't yet a candidate, put out a brochure that rivaled the well-financed efforts in behalf of Rockefeller. If Rockefeller led the field in pre-convention spending for the elusive nomination, Reagan's people were not far behind.

The swarming pro-Rockefeller troops were adding up all of the bits and pieces they could turn up to argue that Nixon will not become the nominee Wednesday night. They pointed to breaks here and there in the Nixon armament.

A backlog of resentment against Rockefeller for not having campaigned for Barry Goldwater in 1964 was beginning to show itself. No delegate talked about it in those terms, but the resentment residue was there.

What was incumbent on Rockefeller, scheduled to make the scene tonight, was a personal salarinesship to individual delegates.

Nixon would appear later, accompanied by his wife, daughters and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's grandson, to stand for endless, sweating hours to shake hands with the faithful.

George Wallace's American Independent Party prepared to hold its first state convention today in California amid confusion caused by rival factions staging sessions at separate sites.

One man claiming to be state chairman has scheduled his own convention in a downtown Sacramento hotel. Another group recognized by Wallace is meeting at a motel on the outskirts of the state capital.

"That's a sign of a healthy party, to have a little dissension," said Wallace as he arrived to address the motel

LOOK WHO'S ON THE STAFF

On a St. Louis television interview program the other day, Missouri Attorney General Norman Anderson denied that one of his office's employees, a Frank Tuter, was anything but an average citizen whose police arrests were for mere traffic violations. Before the program Anderson's chief primary opponent, Russell Millin, had charged that Anderson's unpublished payroll included Tuter who was generally known as a "police character."

Anderson was questioned on the TV interview by Denny Walsh, a St. Louis Globe-Democrat reporter who knows considerably more about Anderson and his record than has been published to date.

Anderson's reply to Walsh about Tuter went something like this, and we quote from the record:

"Now my opponent said that he (Tuter) is an underworld character. It's interesting though his definition of what an underworld character is. He said that he has had numerous arrests. I think he mentioned twenty. One thing, that this has occurred over a period of about twenty years, and he has arrests for left turn signals, some parking violations, some speeding charges, and this has occurred over a period of twenty years. Now if this makes him an underworld character, then I'm just confused as to . . . because I don't think that anyone can put their record up against anyone in the last twenty years if you are going - and these haven't been statutes - these have been misdemeanor violations, parking tickets, left turns, speeding, things of that nature."

After reading Anderson's reply to the newspaper reporter, one is inclined to dismiss Millin's charges. One is inclined to believe that Anderson is simply the subject to typical campaign slander. One is inclined to believe that Tuter, who is admittedly on Anderson's payroll, is simply a bad driver with a penchant for getting caught making harmless little "left turns."

This newspaper, however, has a copy of Tuter's record, and it is hard to believe Anderson was talking about the same man. While it is true that Tuter does have numerous traffic arrests over the past two decades, the police record we have of Tuter shows he has been arrested 24 times by the police and has four convictions.

Frank Tuter, alias Frankie Tut, has been convicted of the following crimes:

- Operating a gambling establishment;
- Selling black market cigarettes;
- Assaulting a police officer.

Despite these convictions, this man is on the staff of the Attorney General of Missouri, Norman Anderson, the state's top legal officer.

We can only speculate why.

Missourians are entitled to something better than this. They are entitled to the kind of staff in the attorney general's office that is free of convictions for such assorted crimes as operating a gambling establishment and assaulting police officers.

We believe the Democratic party will be sorry if it nominates Norman Anderson over Russ Millin, a former U. S. Attorney in western Missouri who has an outstanding record of service and who vigorously pursued a war on organized crime that earned for him the undying hatred of the mafia and gangster elements of the Kansas City area.

But this is the kind of Attorney General we want - a man who is hated by hoodlums, not a man who employs them.

Daily Dunklin Democrat

Why are we keeping our "hands off" in Csechs' Tiff with Russia when we are sticking our nose into every other country's business?

We've heard arguments pro and con on the gun law, but the fact is only law abiding citizens can be disarmed - others can't.

Living in a small city, such as Sikeston, has its compensations.

At 50 plus the memories of those days come back like a pleasant flood.

There was so much freedom and fun.

There was little to be afraid of in those days.

Juvenile delinquency was not a well known term. There weren't enough automobiles on the streets to present a hazard and the threat of runaway horses didn't normally present much danger either.

Most of the town drunks were harmless but occasionally a man went off his rocker from drink or other cause and had to be sent away.

Aside from the hypocrisy of prohibition most people obeyed the law. There were no other significant breakdown of law and order.

Yet "the good old days" doesn't accurately describe them because in many respects they weren't as good as today.

Germs for one thing were more to be feared. Epidemics of one kind or another took too many young lives.

But life was relaxed and easy.

There was kick-the-picket, a variation of hide-and-go-seek.

There were endless arguments about many subjects with which none of our friends were very familiar.

There was the club house that the boys built near the chicken house at the rear of our home and the first meal, which the boys themselves prepared in celebration. Chicken was in piece de resistance

The fate of the chicken was carefully charted even before purchase.

Every member knew in advance whether he was to get the breast, neck, wing or gizzard.

There were the Halloween pranks of pushing over outhouses, which if occupied, was so much the better.

There were the carefree days of fishing with a long pole, string, a lead sinker, a cork, hook with a wiggling worm for bait.

There was trapping and hunting in the winter, long walks through the woods. No one in those days condemned this as brutal or even thought about it in that light.

There were spirited games of horseshoes and backlot baseball and kite flying.

There was the gosh awful yelling back and forth across the street when all the houses in the neighborhood were quarantined.

There were the efforts to sell the neighbors dandelion greens to raise money to buy candy or go to a movie.

There were the neighborhood magic shows, usually broken up when a kid showed up with a $5 bill and demanded change or when the magician performed his tricks before a mirror, giving away his magic.

There was the barber who sold jawbreakers usually with a strand of freshly clipped hair as a bonus on every morsel.

Many of these pleasures are "out" for the present generation.

Let's hope that the "in" things give them as much pleasure a half century from now and that most of them live in such a careful way as to assure that they, too, will have the pleasure of recollection.

Every man has two ambitions: First, to own his own home - and second, to own a car to get away from his home!

We wonder who paid for the double page spread in the August 6th issue of Look Magazine for "Ethical" Ed Long.

It cost Slenker Callonan, Hoffa and Company a bushel and a peck of money.

We wonder of "Ethical" Ed thumbs the majority of the readers will overlook the lines that say paid political advertisement in the upper left hand corner.

"The Texas Right To Work Law guarantees and protects the right to join unions, as well as the right to refuse to join a union. Unions have expanded their membership and influence under this law, and repeal is not necessary to protect the right of working men to join together in unions for their mutual protection and benefit. The public policy of Texas as expressed by the Legislature and our Courts supports the Right To Work Law. Moreover, the Democratic platform on which all other Democrats and I were elected in 1962 called for the retention of that law. Therefore, I strongly oppose any legislation which calls for repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft - Hartley Act."

Male Order. In Miami, Mayor William Wohlfarth pondered a letter from a Texas widow asking him to help her find a husband about 45 who 1) likes to hunt and fish, 2) loves horses, 3) will give her $10,000 cash (no checks) before the wedding.

There are people who do not gossip, but they furnish the material, which is worse.

29 persons killed: driver who was drinking, the driver who was speeding, and the driver who was doing both certainly gets the credit.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: The Miami convention will be grim; Nixon is supremely confident; Rockefeller has the front room, Nixon the back room.

MIAMI BEACH - Richard Nixon is so confident of emerging the winner from this, the biggest political contest, that he's told aides he won't come to Miami until Tuesday. His aides, with equal confidence, or perhaps Braggadocio, are predicting that Nixon will win by the time the roll call of states reaches Tennessee.

Meanwhile, Nixon is on the telephone personally directing every move made by his lieutenants. They don't book an extra suite of rooms at the Hilton Plaza Hotel, where Nixon's headquarters are, without calling the boss in New York. They are cool, calculating, confident, and so is their boss in his law offices high above downtown Manhattan.

You would never guess from their conversation that the biggest handicap Nixon has had to overcome is the sickening fear among rank-and-file Republicans that "Nixon can't win." It results from the memory of that disastrous 1962 defeat when he ran for Governor of California, and that terrible display of temper at the press conference which followed in which he castigated California newspapers.

The whispered reminder that Nixon is a two-time loser and won the vice presidency only when he traveled piggyback on Eisenhower's broad shoulders is the most serious obstacle Nixon has to erase. His cohorts in Miami are doing a pretty good job of making people forget about it.

It's illustrated when you land at the airport. Gov. Rockefeller has pretty girls covered with "Rocky" buttons out to meet the delegates. But they don't know who the delegates are and look prettily at every arrival.

In contrast, Nixon has two of his men meet every plane. There are no girls to kiss new arrivals, no hands playing. But the two Henchmen do have a list of the delegates, pick the right men and announce "we have a car waiting for you."

En route to the hotel the carefully on the sidelines.

NEVER SUCH SECURITY

You hear lots of rumors about tight security at Miami Beach. They are understatements. Never has a political convention been so tightly guarded, never have tickets and badges been so carefully given out. Tickets are coded and the numbers on the tickets are being changed every day. Fluorescent ink has been used to prevent counterfeiting.

An extra contingent of secret service agents and FBI men has been imported and they are living aboard a ship. Together with the Miami police, they have opened all manholes, checked on Cuban exiles in Miami, and imported enough arms to start an insurrection. The arsenal includes combat vests, mace, signal equipment and ammunition.

The Secret Service has discovered that some American students of the new left have gone to Cuba, VIA Mexico, to study at Pinar Del Rio, the Fidel Castro school of indoctrination. A careful check is being made to see if any of them are back in Miami.

There are special restrictions inside the three hotels occupied by the candidates - the Hilton Plaza, Americana, where Rockefeller's headquarters are located, and the Deauville, which houses Ronald Reagan's headquarters.

Each candidate, however, will sleep at a private home, the identity of which is kept strictly secret. Sen. Charles Percy is also staying in a private home, partly because of the murder of his daughter two years ago. When someone mentioned the address of his home in a telephone conversation with him, he became very much alarmed.

Each candidate also is given 25 parking places outside the convention hall, including Harold Stassen, though his entourage is almost nil. This caused such irritation on the part of top-running candidates that Stassen is surrendering most of his parking slots.

All in all it will be a grim convention. No real hoopla is expected. The ghost of Bobby Kennedy, the Democrat murdered in Los Angeles, stands starkly over this meeting of Republicans.

CANADA AT CROSSROADS preoccupied with our own election campaign, Americans may be forgiven for paying less than full attention to events to the north.

But election fever is also raging in Canada, with the outcome there on June 25 every bit as crucial in determining the future course of the country as our own November date with the polls will be for us.

The overriding issue is national unity—in a word,

THE LONG AFTERNOON ZURICH - It was Ray Towne, chief of public relations for Douglas Aircraft, on the phone.

"We're delivering a new DC-8 jet freighter to Swissair. It's going nonstop Long Beach to Europe over the Great Circle. The Swiss will invite you. How about it?"

My brittle arm twisted off at the elbow.

IT IS 11:35 a.m. The thundering, shuddering take-off as we hoist 24,000 gallons of fuel. The climbing turn left toward the Pacific, over the red-and-black - stacked Queen Mary, now being fitted as a hotel, the turn once more over brown Catalina, and the coast again at Huntington Beach where the tanned surfers are slanting in on the broad waves.

12:12 p.m. Las Vegas to the left. Hoover Dam and blue Lake Mead under the starboard wing. Altitude 37,000.

12:50 p.m. Salt Lake City and its green - gray dead sea 30 miles to the west. Persistent summer snows cling to the clefts of the high Wasatch.

THE COCKPIT visit. Captain Wilhelm Knecht and co-pilot Max Ruedlinger at the controls.

Flight Commander Ernie Huerzeler explains how the new computer takes indicated air speed, cranks in the pressure, altitude and outside temperature and comes up with true air speed, how the doppler gives a continuous reading of true ground speed.

A long cry from the hand-rotated E-B-B and the scribbled best guesses of 20 years ago. 2 p.m. Dickinson, N. D., and the zebra - striped fields that characterized the world's greatest breadbasket. That plumb - line east and west is the Northern Pacific.

2:33 p.m. (Still Pacific Daylight time, for there's no point in trying to move the watch ahead as the degrees of latitude compress and the time zones shorten.) Winnipeg 20 miles northwest. The wheat ends abruptly. The woods come in with 100,000 lakes.

Here are the blue wounds of the great glaciers, deep pools filled with hungry, unsophisticated fish that would take an old sock.

3:43 p.m. James Bay above Akimiski Island. Hudson Bay on the left, sprinkled with ice floes - a forbidding inland ocean even in midsummer, cloaking forever the fate of Henry Hudson and his child, set adrift in an open boat by mutinous sailors four centuries ago.

4:30 p.m. The Canadian Shield, a melancholy wasteland of bare - scraped granite, cut in north - south ridges by the grinding ice of ages past, home of iron, nickel and cobalt and many fortunes yet to be made by the adventurous and daring.

Here is the great Ungava Bay to the north and guarded by Cape Hopes Advance, named, doubtless, by some long - departed optimist who thought he had found the Northwest Passage to the riches of the Indies.

5:11 p.m. the top-tip of Labrador. Mile - high Mount Cirque, heavy with snow and dipping to a deep fiord and the tiny Eskimo village of Ramah.

BUT WHAT'S THIS? A myriad of white sails? A regatta - here? No, icebergs, standing down the Davis Strait. Here are the floating fossils of Time, made of snows that fell while Neanderthals still lived, when the Pyramids were new.

6:05 p.m. Greenland. Black nunataks rising above curving Mississippi of ice. To the north the 5,000 - foot icecap. A pink prairie in the setting sun.

6:40 p.m. The ocean, now. Home of the roistering Vikings who dared magnificently, wrote miserably, and sprinkled the New World with mystery, leaving a cryptic rune-stone in a rattlesnake glen above Heavener, Oklahoma.

8:00 p.m. The sun is misbehaving. It went down reluctantly on the port quarter an hour ago, but the redness persisted, moved slowly abeam, and now the sun is coming up again on the port bow.

8:50 p.m. Scotland. John O'Groats to the right, the somber Orkneys to the left. We are heading for Copenhagen where Swissair does instrument modification on new planes with SAS so that they may exchange crews.

9:35 p.m. Jutland. Home of the terrible Jutes who caused the ancient Britons to build alarm fires on every headland.

9:45 p.m. The lovely green island of Fyn and there is Odense, birthplace of the gentle Hans Christian Andersen who lived his life in a world of elves and fairy godmothers.

9:55 p.m. The rich farms of Sjælland, moving swiftly now. There's the Oresund ahead and Sweden just beyond, and here's Copenhagen with its little bronze mermaid on her harbor rock and a gleaming white Russian liner on her way out to the world.

10:12 p.m. (6:12 a.m. local time). Kastrup Airport where, as a kid 39 years ago, I finished my first commercial air adventure on a rattling single - engine Fokker up from Amsterdam.

Ten hours, 37 minutes (and 6,020 miles) from Long Beach. It's been a long and gorgeous afternoon.

Quebec. It is whether Canadians of largely British and French descent are to remain one nation or whether separatists, increasingly demanded in 90 per cent French-speaking Quebec, is to become the shape of the Canadian future. The campaign is one of personalities and paradoxes.

On the one side, there is Pierre Elliott Trudeau, a swinging, 48-year-old bachelor who took over as prime minister and head of the Liberal party this spring, promptly dissolving parliament and calling the election. Trudeau is a Quebecer himself, but takes his stand against separatism.

On the other is Robert Stanfield, 53, a family man from mountain-girded Canada, former premier of Nova Scotia, who heads the major opposition, the Progressive Conservative party. He talks of a "two-nation" policy that would grant Quebec considerably greater autonomy from the central government in Ottawa, although still within the confederation.

Quebec is the key as well as the issue. The province elects more than a third of parliament, and the vote may well turn on whether the appeal of a native son standing for unity with the English-speaking majority outweighs French Canada's deep-seated yearning for greater independence.

Americans have more than a casual interest in the outcome. Canada is not only our nearest but our warmest friend, and by far our most important trading partner. We share the world's longest unfortified border and responsibility for defense of the continent. NORAD, the North American Air Defense Command, is a joint American-Canadian operation. We are not our neighbor's keeper, but his welfare is of very real significance to our own.

This is old, but it has always been one of our favorites.

The young playboy took a blind date to an amusement park. They went for a ride on the Ferris wheel. The ride completed, she seemed rather bored.

"What would you like to do next?" he asked. "I wanna be weighed," she said. So the young man took her over to the weight guesser. "112," said the man at the scale, and he was absolutely right.

Doc. Duncan Says

If our U.S.A. is gonna keep on keepin on, he sez there over to the weight guesser. "112," said the man at the scale, out orto get an invitation to come home, period.

SHOWDOWN IN MIAMI: Labor Chiefs Confront Republican Policy Makers in Convention City

Miami Beach: -- For a few days the Republicans have had to share this gold coast with some labor leaders who generally have it to themselves. The consequential clash came at the lush Fontainebleau, a hotel which deprived Italy of much of its marble.

This piquant, though potent bit of history unfortunately was overlooked by the ballot-counting media, although the confrontation had in it the makings of years of crises and days of endless headlines.

It developed when America's Mr. Labor, George Meany, in a quadrennial burst of bipartisanship, handed the Economic Affairs Subcommittee of the GOP Convention Platform Committee the AFL-CIO's vision of the future.

It was perfunctorily handed over and it was perfunctorily accepted.

Subcommittee Chairman Roman Hruska had his doubts about Mr. Meany's bipartisanship, and Mr. Meany had his doubts he could influence the committee.

Nonetheless, the document outlined what the powerful AFL-CIO will fight for in the next four years and what it will ask for, and probably get, at the Democratic convention.

After driving down from the Hotel Americana (coincidentally, Nelson Rockefeller's massive headquarters here), Mr. Meany and his colleagues made it clear they would fight for the following:

A 35-hour workweek, with no pay reduction from the standard 40-hour workweek. Labor wants this accomplished by a revision of the 30-year-old Fair Labor Standards Act -- and labor means it.

American labor leadership will fight for a statutory 35-hour (perhaps 4 1/4-day) week in the next few years -- and if Hubert Humphrey is elected, they positively expect to revise the law and have the week.

A $2-an-hour minimum wage for all who work for a living. Having won a $1.60-an-hour minimum, labor now wants to up the floor to $2, not only for those in interstate commerce but for millions more, especially those employed in small retail and service firms and small farms, and as domestic help.

Mr. Meany's document reported that at least another 11 million non-supervisory employees in private industry must be included under the federal minimum wage statutes.

There is much more. Mr. Meany has put it all down on paper. Let all this not come as a surprise to anyone after the next inauguration.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Double time for overtime. The current legal standard of time and a half, says Mr. Meany, is outmoded and must be raised to double time. The last change in the law was made in 1938.

Full employment. The labor delegation told the subcommittee that the federal government must be the employer of last resort. If there are men and women who can't find jobs, the government must create them.

At least one million public service jobs should be created immediately for the unemployed -- and a million more later. It is the contention that some 13 million persons were jobless at some time during the past year. About 3.5-4 million were unemployed for 15 weeks or more in '67.

In addition, some 1.7 million people had to work part-time because full-time work was not available in the first six months of '68.

So Mr. Meany concludes that in recent years there have been three to five million workers who have been unemployed for long periods of time, or have been seasonally underemployed. Labor now wants the government to make work for them. These jobs can be created in parks, schools, hospitals, playgrounds, libraries, public buildings and similar institutions -- sort of a WPA project of the depression '30s.

Adjusting to automation. Mr. Meany is no Luddite. He would not trip up the computer or the electronic factories of the future.

But he wants the speed of technological change adjusted so that "industry, communities and workers can play to avoid and minimize disrupting effects."

He wants the government to set up a clearinghouse to monitor technological developments, and make forecasts of their impact. And he urges the establishment of a federal information and guidance service, to help unions and employers on request to adjust to automation through collective bargaining.

Mr. Meany also would have the government help relocate workers and their families from surplus labor communities to areas where jobs are plentiful.

Of course, old feuds aren't forgotten. Labor will fight again for repeal of the right to work law (14.B), and the right to picket a construction site, such as Cape Kennedy, and thereby halt all construction though the dispute is with but one employer on the site.

There is much more. Mr. Meany has put it all down on paper. Let all this not come as a surprise to anyone after the next inauguration.

Sikeston Couple Honored on Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Alva W. Estes, 1624 Matthews, were guests of honor July 21 at a reception observing their 50th wedding anniversary. Hosts were their son, C. W. Estes, and daughter, Linda.

Mr. and Mrs. Estes received their friends and relatives from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Fellowship Baptist church.

The fellowship hall was decorated in gold and white for the occasion. Behind the service table was a wall covered with streamers of gold and white crepe paper. The service table was adorned with a white linen cloth overlaid with gold net. White wedding bells tied with gold cabbage roses decorated the corners. Glowing white tapers in silver candleholders flanked the three tiered wedding cake decorated in gold roses and swans. A silver coffee service graced one end of the table. Golden punch was served from a silver punch bowl. Cookies, mints and nuts were served from silver trays. Wedding bells hung overhead the service table. Serving were Miss Barbara Armour, Miss Connie Woods and Miss Karen Spivey.

The gift table was covered with a gold cloth overlaid with lace. This table was adorned with white wedding bells and gold cabbage roses. The table was centered with an arrangement of white bells inscribed 50th in gold. From these bells were gold and white streamers which were secured to the table. Miss Linda Estes, granddaughter, was in charge of the gift table.

Miss Jan Hitt was in charge of the guest book which was placed on a table covered in gold and overlaid with lace. The table was centered with two wedding bells inscribed with 50th.

Mrs. Estes was attired in a blue printed voile dress, complemented with white shoes and gloves. She wore a purple threaded orchid accented with gold ribbon. Out-of-town guests were, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gunter and Renee, Belleville, Ill., Lewis Gunter, East St. Louis, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. George Allison, Arbyrd, Mr. and Mrs. Don Stumbaugh, Burdette, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. Bill Blackman, Bertrand, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Selby, John L. Allison, Mr. and Mrs. Ashley DeVault, all of Arbyrd, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold White, Arlington Heights, Ill.

Kennett Forms Run For Your Life Club

KENNETT - Miss Linda Langley, girls physical education instructor at the high school, announced that a jogging club for women will be organized Aug. 12.

Any woman (out of high school and older) who is interested is asked to meet at high school track at 8 p.m. on the above date.

Miss Langley said that the club will be known as the "Run For Your Life Club" and that it will meet two nights per week as a group and that smaller groups can meet three additional times per week as it is convenient.

She said that running has been proven to be the best exercise for all over body tonement and that a recent study revealed that a running program has been helpful to persons suffering heart attacks, diabetes victims and even arthritic symptoms. In some instances inches are lost even if pounds are not, she said.

Miss Langley revealed that to begin the program the club members would be walking and would gradually work up to distance running.

There are only two things Miss Langley asks of potential club members. "First, I would like for everyone to be willing to run and secondly, it is advisable that persons planning to join the club have a physical checkup to be certain it is alright for them to participate in a program such as this."

An ideal running program, she said, is 16 weeks, and when the weather is bad, she hopes to continue the program indoors providing the gymnasium is available.

There will be no charge she emphasized and the club members should only be at the track about 20 minutes on nights the group is in session.

CREDIT CALCULATOR - MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) A Consumer Credit Calculator developed by two Kansas State University professors is attracting nationwide attention.

Dr. Richard L. D. Morse and Mrs. Albice Rasmussen of the University's Department of Family Economics designed the calculator to find the annual interest percentage rate for consumers who are comparison shopping for credit.

The calculator is a series of simplified actuarial tables presented on a one-page form. It will quickly disclose that a 6 per cent car finance quotation actually totals about 11 per cent for a 12-month contract.

It also helps provide dollar amounts of interest over a given period, even on a sliding percentage interest basis, thus yielding total cost and annual interest rate.

Spokesmen at K-State said the calculator is now being used by credit unions, high schools, colleges and universities.

Dexter, Carl H. Holt of Bloomfield, Wilson R. Lefter and Mrs. Lillian Miller, both of Dexter, have been released from Doctors hospital.

IT'S A GREAT LIFE IF YOU WEAKEN!

One of our American ideals is self-sufficiency. Many of us try to follow it and find the price to be broken health and discouraged minds. Sometimes, too late, we discover we cannot be self-sufficient. But it's a great life if you weaken. God's help and strength await the one who has learned only God's sufficiency is sufficient. If the realization of your weakness brings you to God, you find the true strength.

Reagan Signs Bill to Restore

Hollywood Films

SACRAMENTO, Calif. AP - With his old movie colleagues looking on, Gov. Ronald Reagan signed into law a tax bill he predicts will "restore Hollywood as once again the world's film capital."

The measure eliminates a tax that movie makers argue is driving American producers overseas and aggravating unemployment in the industry.

The sound stages and lots of Hollywood bustled during the years when Reagan made his living on the screen.

The tax was levied on the material value of the film on Hollywood shelves at the March 1 property taxation date, plus such intangible values as who starred in the film, and predictions of its profit. The bill would apply the tax only to the actual value of the film.

The POWER of FAITH

Faith in Atlanta is exemplified by these two men, Albert J. Bows, Jr., president of Atlanta Chamber of Commerce (right) and Harmon D. Moore, executive director, Christian Council of Metropolitan Atlanta.

Early in March, 1968, Mr. Bows was encouraged by a minister to speak to the Christian Council of the growing tensions and problems of jobs, housing, schools, parks and transportation. In his speech entitled, "An opportunity for the Church and for Atlanta" he challenged the clergy, and laymen as well, to help change human attitudes, in order to relieve racial tensions so that these problems could be solved.

Dr. Moore, whose 25 years of experience as a U. S. Army chaplain had given him deep insight into these problems, was enthusiastic. He and other members of the Christian Council unanimously endorsed a resolution to "respond to the urban crisis." The Jewish community also supported the council's efforts. Mr. Bows had three specific suggestions for the church:

1. To work on at least one public housing project.
2. To encourage employers to help provide jobs.
3. To provide more interchange of ideas and activities between white and Negro churches.

Mr. Bows ended his speech with this plea: "Help us as individuals to become so involved with our concern for each other that there will be no need for violence, tensions or pressures in trying to solve our problems. If we can do all of this, maybe some day we can learn to live in the same community peacefully, with dignity and respect for each other."

A LETTER TO ALL CITIZENS

Dear Friends:
The purpose of this letter is to extend to you a cordial friendly greeting and to solicit your vote and support in my candidacy for Congressman in our 10th Dis. of Mo.

In the campaign I have had the pleasure to meet and make a wide acquaintance of new friends, as well of those of long standing in all walks of life. I feel sure and hope that you are sufficiently acquainted with me to form an opinion as to whether or not I am worthy and qualified to be your next Rep. of this District.

If I am elected, I will without partiality serve all the people of this District, keeping in mind at all times their common good and best interest. This I will do to the very best of my ability. Aug. 6, I respectfully ask you when you go to the polls and vote for Congressman to kindly give me your consideration.

With a word of appreciation for your help at this time, I am grateful beyond my power of expression.

Sincerely Yours, Jim Wallace.

P.S. Owing to the large population of this 10th Dis. and the shortness of time, I find that it is impossible for me to personally meet each voter, hence this word to you.

Changing Rodeo Scene

"This is the way a cowboy used to be: He rolled his own smokes from a Bull Durham sack, drank his whiskey from the bottle. He cursed, fought, roped, rode, wrestled steers and fixed a windmill.

"On the rodeo circuit he was a curly wolf and he had to do it all — ride, rope, bulldog, etc. — to make a living."

That is what Jim Trinkle, sports columnist for the Fort Worth, Tex., Star-Telegram, wrote in a recent column when a professional Rodeo Cowboys Association rodeo was in town.

But Trinkle is aware of the changing rodeo scene, and he continued:

"This is the cowboy now: He's a college man and does... commercials. He takes a splash of soda in his scotch (make it with a twist of lemon, ma'am) and in the rodeo business he's a specialist.

"Competition is so keen," says steer wrestler Jack Roddy, "that you find most guys going for one event. The purses are so good nowadays that specialists are the rule.

"There's a cowboy here who's one of the best bareback bronc riders in the country. But we wouldn't let him ride in one of the parades because we were afraid he'd fall off his horse. He's used to holding on to that bareback bronc rigging and riding a certain way. It's not like sittin' a horse."

Jack has ridden the bucking horses; straddled the steers, too. But it was like trying to stand a piece of spaghetti on end. He stands 6-5. So he's a bulldogger, period.

"I've got too much body to control on a bronc," he said. "Most steer wrestlers are big — like myself, Jim Bynum and John Hatley. Bronc riders are little."

Jack is 30 years old. You might say he has been living a dream for 28 years. He got his first pony on his dad's San Jose, Calif., ranch when he was two.

"I never wanted to be anything except a cowboy," he said. "We've got two nice bars in San Francisco and I don't have to do this for a living. But I'd like to win another championship."

In high school he drew horses in art class. His phrase to describe his thoughts then is "I'd sit around in class and rope my boot." Most of his waking thoughts homed in on saddle leather and a good horse.

Rodeoing has come a lot of miles and a few million dollars since Roddy won the all-around intercollegiate championship and college steer wrestling title at Cal Poly in 1959.

"Harley May set the money-winning record with $19,000 in 1954," he said. "Ten years later C. R. Boucher broke the record, but only by $400. I won $22,400 bulldogging in '66 and Roy Duvall broke my record last year with $30,300. Larry Mahan won $52,000 as all-around champion last year, and that's the way the money has jumped up. We've got 10 million people coming to see us, and there's $3.5 million in purses.

"Cowboying has changed. We're not a bunch of drinkers, fighters and tobacco chewers. If a guy writes a hot check, he's going to get suspended. We've got a rule book and we're going to keep the sport clean."

Roddy is a director in the Rodeo Cowboys Association. He wouldn't trade it for a seat in the White House. There is a certain nobility about a man who is dead sure that his station in life is the best there is. Jack Thomas Roddy does.

"This sport," he said, "is plumb independent. I've got a boy and I'd like for him to be a cowboy. People like cowboys... cowboys don't have a bunch of agents and lawyers like other athletes. They don't have bedchecks.

"This hat cost me $50 and I got on a pair of boots worth $120. My clothes are tailor-made in Denver, but they're cowboy clothes. I'm a cowboy and I want people to know I'm a cowboy. I'm proud to be a cowboy."

Adding to Trinkle's column, the R. C. A. said today Roddy has taken complete command in the early 1968 race for the steer wrestling crown.

When Roddy won the title in 1966, he had pocketed $6,223 after the Redbluff, Calif., rodeo in mid-April.

Roddy's money has been won with skills as scientific as Billy Casper's touch with a putter. Swooping down from a horse to the horns of a 700 pound steer running 30 miles an hour or better, bringing the animal to a halt and then to the ground — all in eight seconds or less — is not child's play.

For a better look at the subject attend next week's Jaycee Bootheel rodeo, starting Thursday.

Holtzman Cools St. Louis Cairo Takes Two

ST. LOUIS (AP)—There's a change in the way Ken Holtzman is pitching for the Chicago Cubs, and something familiar about the way the other clubs are not hitting him.

Holtzman, the Cubs' polished lefty, polished off the St. Louis Cardinals on two hits Friday night to lead Chicago to a 3-0 victory.

It was Holtzman's third straight shutout, something that seems to be habit-forming for National League pitchers this year, and it was the fourth straight victory for the Cubs.

It all came about because of the change, or more correctly, the change-up.

"Concentration and a changeup," Manager Leo Durocher said, was the secret to Holtzman's string.

"He's worked hard to develop the change-up. He worked with (pitching coach Joe) Becker on it."

He did, indeed, Becker said, adding "the difficult part was to throw it with the same motion."

The swift lefty threw it with stunning success through the first five innings during which time no Cardinal got a hit.

Julian Javier finally broke through with a single in the sixth.

Tim McCarver added another hit in the seventh.

That was it, at least as far as the Cardinal hitting was concerned. "It was the best game I ever pitched," Holtzman (8-7) said. "I might have had better stuff in other games, but as far as smartness and strategy was concerned, it was my best game."

While Holtzman was showing off his smarts and strategy, the Cubs hit Larry Jaster (8-7) for all their runs in the fifth inning.

Randy Hundley opened the inning with a single. Then Jim Hickman, Aldolpho Phillips and Holtzman singled for two runs. Ron Willis came in to relieve and after a couple of outs, including a sacrifice, Billy Williams was intentionally walked to load the bases. Ron Santo was unintentionally walked to drive in the third run.

And Holtzman kept showing the Cardinals his smarts.

The way Durocher explained it: "He's not just playing catch with Hundley any more. He is a pitcher now. He's using more finesse."

In their effort to return to winning form today, the Cardinals scheduled Ray Washburn (10-3) to take the mound against the Cubs' Bill Hands (11-6).

CHARLESTON — Cairo's entry into the Babe Ruth invitational baseball tournament walked away with the two big prizes last night as they defeated the host, 4-2, for the championship and won the Sportsmanship award.

Charleston out hit the winners 6-4, but Cairo took advantage of the hosts' miscues for their runs and the title.

Steve Carlisle led Charleston in the hitting department with a two for three showing at the plate, including a solo homer for his team's first tally.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes presented the trophies.

Charleston will host a 9 and 10 year old tournament Aug. 12-16.

The San Francisco Warriors and the Oakland Oaks will have to wait at least a month to find out which team Rick Barry will play basketball for this year.

Final arguments were heard Wednesday in the suit brought by the Warriors of the National Basketball Association to keep Barry from playing for the Oaks of the American Basketball Association.

Superior Court Judge Walter Carpeneti promised a ruling by the end of August and asked the Warriors to submit a brief on related cases that will back up their arguments. The Oaks will get a chance to reply.

Barry's lawyer, Robert Holtzman, argued that Barry's absence from the Warriors' lineup last year after signing with the Oaks was not responsible for the team's poor attendance and results last year.

Barry sat out last season when a court order restrained him from playing for anyone but the Warriors. The team is now arguing that he must play one more year to fulfill his contract.

14-Team Tourney Opens Monday at Puckett Field

Stars Dent Scoring Column But Lose 34-17

CHICAGO (AP) — The College All-Stars didn't win Friday night against the Green Bay Packers but they managed to score both against the Packers and for the pro teams for whom they will play.

The final score in the 35th annual midsummer football classic was 34-17 in favor of Green Bay.

It was an unprecedented fifth straight loss for the All-Stars in the series but it left the pros licking their chops waiting for their new draft choices to arrive.

It also produced a chink in the Green Bay armor—you can run against the Packers.

For the first time in three years an All-Star team dented the scoring column against the Packers.

Larry Csonka, the Syracuse All-American headed for the Miami Dolphins, turned out to be the game's leading ground gainer while the passing duo of Grey Landry and Earl McCulloch, both headed for the Detroit Lions, proved itself ready for pro football.

Tourney Site Changed From Puckett to Farris

The final six games of the 9 and 10 year old baseball tournament scheduled for Puckett field will be played at Farris field, starting today with games at 1:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. and another pair tonight starting at 7 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

The consolation and championship games will be played tomorrow at 2 p.m. and 3:30 p.m.

NEW YORK AP — Duka of Czechoslovakia was selected today to oppose the Israeli national soccer exhibition match Sunday Sept. 15 at Yankee Stadium.

Duka, the 10-time Czechoslovakian soccer champion, last appeared in the United States three years ago, placing second in the international soccer league's Challenge Cup. The Czechs won the title four straight times from 1961-64.

BALLSTON S.P.A. N.Y. AP — One of the problems in the race was in keeping the entries from devouring each other.

The contest, held not far from Samtoga Raceway, was won by the big green racing frog, who outdistanced such other speedsters as beetles, moles, toads, garter snakes and large ants.

The Detroit Tigers and their secret weapon seemed well on the way to winning the pennant. At the All-Star break, the Tigers were leading the American League by 9½ games.

Those who have watched him work say he has a system.

1. "He builds a man's confidence through his ability to get inside a man and help him bring out his best.

2. "He motivates the man to explore and develop his full potential.

3. "He shows him a new pitch... but only if the man needs one.

4. "Sain defends his pitchers and protects them from all nonconstructive criticism and negative second-guessing by others."

Sain believes in the mental approach. "What you believe and conceive, you can achieve," he says, quoting a well-known inspirational writer.

The famed pitching coach stresses the positive mental approach and every pitcher reads Success Unlimited magazine.

Sain gives inspirational tapes and records to his friends. He thinks that the money spent is well invested.

"If I can spend a few dollars and show a man how to help himself, that's better than a night on the town," he says. "When you blow yourself to a night on the town, what have you got left in the morning to show for your money? Nothing."

He recommends that his pitchers read motivational books such as "The Success System That Never Fails," by W. Clement Stone, "Think and Grow Rich" by Napoleon Hill, and "I Dare You" by William Danforth.

Sain believes you must have a goal, and a plan to reach your goal. This he calls the right mental attitude.

And he goes on: "I think all of us should pay more attention to learning to control our attitude through our subconscious mind even though I realize some people still laugh at these things."

As Pat Harmon says, "The American League batters who have to face that Detroit pitching staff every day aren't laughing."

Hillboro, Mo., will play Beaverdale, Iowa, tonight in the championship game of the senior Little League baseball tournament.

The winner will go to the regional tourney in Des Moines next week.

Hillboro defeated Hugoton, Kan., 6-5 Thursday night to reach the finals.

The U. S. Basketball Writers Association presented a 1967 brochure award to Kansas University Thursday.

The awards went to seven schools or their outstanding basketball informational booklets.

Oklahoma received a similar award from the Football Writers Association of America.

Carl Yastrzemski and umpire Al Salerno burst into a heated argument after a third strike call which ended Thursday night's 1-0 New York victory over Boston. The umpire says he is reporting the incident to American League President Joe Cronin for further action.

The slugging Red Sox outfielder argued briefly on the field, then the verbal battle really exploded under the stands as reported by Pat Horne in today's editions of the Boston Record American.

"I will positively file a report on him with Mr. Cronin, and it will be up to the president to take further action," Salerno said. "Since the game was completed there's nothing else I can do."

PINE BROOK, N. J. AP — Bill Ertel of Point Pleasant, N. J., won the first of two 25-lap races for three-quarter midget autos at the Pine Brook Stadium Friday night. In the second race, Bob Watkins of Levittown, Pa., was the winner.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

He gave some... apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some pastors and teachers. (Ephesians 4:11) PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, grant us more of Thy spirit so that we may see clearly the task which Thou hast given us. Help us to be faithful in our Christian duties in order that Thy church may carry the message of eternal life in each heart. In the name of Jesus. Amen.

Ann Landers Kids' Beefs Called Nonsense

Dear Ann Landers: For crying in the grog, will you please quit wasting valuable newspaper space on those squirrely teen-age "problems." The kids who write have a different beef every five minutes - especially the girls - they sound as if the world is coming to an end. I'll bet by the time their letters appear in print they have forgotten who the clown was they were writing about.

In the past two weeks I've read nonsense from a sinner who complained about not getting fed while on the job, a boring thing from a girl whose parents fight all the time and a stupid request for a cure for acne. You've also printed letters from kids whose friends are shoplifters and smoke pot. Such letters should not get space in your column. It makes the writer feel important.

Please use your brains on the adults who need your help. Ann. The punks can manage for themselves. Besides, they probably don't listen to you anyway. --STEADY ANN FAN

Dear Steady: Thanks for your point of view. Here's someone else's:

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a teen reader who would like to make a request. Please, Ann, make sure there is at least one teen-age problem in your column every day. We teens are faithful readers and when we get passed over completely we feel very let down, like ignored.

Many teen-agers have no one to confide in. Your column is a wonderful place to unload without fear of humiliation or embarrassment. We also learn a lot from the kids who have made mistakes and written to say so. So please, Ann, pay more attention to us. We really need you. -- TRUE BLUE TO YOU

Dear True: I can't promise, but I will try to publish one teen-age letter every day. Thanks for your vote of confidence.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the wife who complained because she and her husband must visit her 79-year-old mother - in - law "several times a year." She said the old lady lives 140 miles away and the trips are a big, fat bore.

My mother - in - law lives two blocks away and she drives me and my husband nuts. She thinks nothing of telephoning at 7:30 in the morning and asking him to go get her a pint of coffee cream or a loaf of bread. And no matter where she goes, he has to drive her.

Loss of Jail Cell Key Not Robbery

By Jack Strauss, L.L.B.

Jail - bird Barney had a phobia about being in jail. Sentenced to three months in the pokie, he immediately strained his brain in an effort to figure how he could get out.

Finally, he came up with a plan. He staged a fight with a prison guard during which he "lifted" the key to his cell from the distracted fist flailing guard. Unfortunately for Barney, however, the guard didn't remain distracted for long. Missing the key, he searched until he found it, of all places, under Barney's pillow.

The result? Freedom - seeking Barney was charged with robbery, to wit: taking the guard's cell key.

"The guy's a crook," the guard complained to the judge. "He can't be trusted."

"I didn't steal his key," was Barney's answer. "The fact is, I only borrowed it. He would have gotten it back."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict cagy Barney of robbery?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that "robbery" requires the intent to permanently deprive someone of their property. In this case, the judge pointed out, it was unlikely that Barney intended to permanently deprive the guard of his key since it was no use to Barney unless he intended to stay in jail, which was also unlikely.

Assistant Attorney-General of Missouri.

Three-term prosecuting attorney of Cape Girardeau County

Past president, Missouri Prosecuting Attorneys' Association.

Our involvement in Viet Nam has been an unfortunate one, from its inception in 1954 under the leadership of General Eisenhower. Not only have we sacrificed the lives of 25,000 of our nation's finest young men, we are spending at the rate of 2 1/2 billion dollars a month to finance the war. This is the chief root cause of the inflationary spiral, the balance of payments deficit and the 10% income tax surcharge. We must have a prompt and honorable conclusion to the war. Soviet Book Claims Hitler and Mistress Died of Poisoning

NEW YORK (AP) - Adolf Hitler and his mistress, Eva Braun, died of self-administered cyanide poisoning according to a book by a former Soviet intelligence officer to be published today, the New York Times reported.

The book, "The Death of Adolf Hitler," by Lev Aleksandrovich Bezymensky, discloses for the first time details of a Soviet autopsy on the Hitler and Braun bodies, 23 years after the postmortem was performed, the Times said.

The Times story, by Harrison E. Salisbury, said the Soviet account of Hitler's death contradicts earlier versions, including those of William L. Shirer and H. R. Trevor-Roper. Both historians concluded that Hitler shot himself after shooting his wife of one day, Eva Braun.

Churchill Memorial Visitors Hail From All But One State

FULTON, Mo. (AP) - The Winston Churchill Memorial at Westminster College in Fulton says only one state - Vermont - now remains unlisted on its registration book after a tourist from New Hampshire visited the memorial Wednesday.

Memorial officials announced earlier it had had visitors from all 50 states except Vermont and New Hampshire. An alert service station attendant in Fulton noted a New Hampshire license tag on a car that stopped at the station. He told memorial attendants and directed them to it.

The New Hampshire visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Tony Yetka, of 3 Hillside Avenue, Berlin, New Hampshire. The couple had been to the Lake of the Ozarks attending a convention of insurance salesmen.

Another visitor to the memorial yesterday added Northern Ireland to the list of visitors from 13 foreign countries that have visited the memorial.

EDWARD L. DOWD DEMOCRAT

With a Record of Leadership Will Be a Great Lieutenant Governor

"... as Circuit Attorney, Edward L. Dowd fought organized crime and drove the Capone race wire service out of business." (St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

"Dowd's chief opponent is William Morris of Kansas City. Morris is actively supported by Alex Presta, former convict, and Nick Civella, national underworld figure, both of Kansas City; and also the Steamfitters Union of St. Louis." (St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

"On the basis of his fine record as a public official and his progressive attitude on vital state problems, Edward L. Dowd deserves the Democratic nomination for Lt. Governor of Missouri." (St. Louis Globe-Democrat)

Today In U.S. History

By The Associated Press
Today is Saturday, Aug. 3, the 216th day of 1968. There are 150 days left in the year.
On this date:
In 1780, Benedict Arnold was put in command of the fortifications at West Point, N.Y., during the American Revolution.
In 1881, British troops occupied the Egyptian town of Suez.
In 1914, Germany declared war on France. Britain announced it would protect France from attack.
In 1943, during World War II, there were anti-Nazi demonstrations in Milan, Genoa and other cities in northern Italy.
In 1951, the U.S. Military Academy at West Point was rocked by scandal as 90 cadets were dismissed for cheating in examinations.
Ten years ago: The atomicpowered U.S. submarine Nautilus made the first undersea crossing of the North Pole.
Five years ago: Secretary of State Dean Rusk arrived in Moscow to sign a treaty banning nuclear tests in the atmosphere, under water and in outer space.
One year ago: A halo with precious stones was stolen from a statue of the Virgin Mary in the Church of the Holy Sepulcher in Jerusalem.

Corporate Farming Inroads Found Small

WASHINGTON (AP) — Large corporate farms have not made serious inroads into the traditional family style of American agricultural production, says a new report by the Department of Agriculture. The survey is a preliminary report on corporate farming in 22 states. It was ordered last fall by Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman and released Friday. Corporations make up less than one per cent of the commercial farms in the area, operate less than seven per cent of the land and sell about four per cent of the farm products, the study shows.

"Further, more than 70 per cent of the corporations found were family-owned, including many family type farms which have incorporated for business reasons," the report said. Large-scale, corporation agriculture has caused concern among many who claim that huge "conglomerate" farming corporations could spell doom for family-type operations.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., who has been investigating corporate agriculture for the Senate small business monopoly subcommittee, said the survey shows corporate farming is growing steadily and that more information is needed. "No one suggests that corporation farming has already taken over American agriculture. But this report confirms the fact that the trend is increasing rapidly," he said in a statement.

A total of 6,700 corporation units are farming about 40 million acres of land in the 22 states. About one-third operated nonfarm activities in addition, the survey found. Nearly 60 per cent of the 400 largest corporations were family owned.

DAVID ROLWING

FRIEND OF AGRICULTURE

With agricultural interests of his own, including farm land and a family-owned grain elevator and cotton gin, David Rolwing has deep personal concern for and first-hand experience with the problems of Southeast Missouri farmers.

During his eight years as a Representative, David Rolwing has served constantly on the House Agriculture Committee, and has sponsored successful legislation to improve the lot of farm families and agri-business. These laws include such measures as one making it a felony to set fire to fields, timber, or range land belonging to another person; the law establishing the state grain warehouse licensing act; and many others. In Congress he will seek assignment to the Agriculture Committee.

On August 6, the people of Missouri can choose a U.S. Senator destined for greatness.

We need Tom Eagleton's vigor, his intelligence, his keen sense of justice. Most of all, we need his fresh solutions to today's problems

A seat in the United States Senate can't be bought. It has to be earned.

As our Lieutenant Governor and Attorney General and as Circuit Attorney of St. Louis, Tom Eagleton has earned the respect and confidence of the people of Missouri—and national recognition as one of America's outstanding young leaders.

With your help, Tom Eagleton offers a brilliant future of service—not just to the special-interest few, but to all Missourians.

As our United States Senator, Tom Eagleton will continue to make Missouri proud.

"...we favor his nomination..."

"Mr. Eagleton at 38 is in his prime. He was an exceptionally able Circuit Attorney, an exceptionally able Attorney General, an exceptionally able Lieutenant Governor. Having thus gone through a rigorous period of political training, he is ripe for higher office, and Missouri would be the loser if his talents were not made use of."

STEEL ROOF BEAMS are installed at the high school fieldhouse. Construction on the tension ring, which encircles the concrete block and brick walls, began July 1. Welding on the ring has been completed and erection of the beams started. The roof is expected to be completed in two months.

Fieldhouse Outline Rising

Steel workers for Pigeon-Thomas Construction Company of Memphis began work on the superstructure of the High School fieldhouse roof Monday.

Two large jutting interlaced steel triangular sections were in place.

It is expected to take 40 days to erect and weld the superstructure of the Lamella steel roof structure, Lennie Whitworth, engineer for Buchmueller, Whitworth &

Foust, architects and engineers, said.

The structure of the roof will be completed earlier but welding will have to be completed before the roof deck and roofing material can be applied.

The roof is designed to lace together to stresses and hinge them on the steel tension ring at the top of the brick and concrete circular walls.

The roof deck will consist of insul rock, a wood fiber and cement under pressure, which will form an insulation and give structural support to the roof.

To the deck, a rubberized synthetic overlay will be applied.

The roof is expected to be completed in three months.

Duct work, electrical work, pouring of the concrete floor and application of the floor overlay will be started then.

The building is expected to be completed before January.

Roadway bleachers to seat more than 4,000 persons will be installed.

INTERLACED STEEL beams form the superstructure for the roof of the high school fieldhouse. A strike at Pigeon Thomas Construction Company of Memphis delayed delivery and erection of the roof.

CONSTRUCTION WORKERS for Pigeon Thomas Construction Company of Memphis, prepare to place a section of the steel roof superstructure in place at the high school fieldhouse.

14 Contesting for Congress Seat Stirs Interest in Primaries

BENTON - In Tuesday's primary elections interest in Southeast Missouri centers on the race for representative from the 10th congressional district.

Eleven candidates seek the Democratic nomination and three the Republican nomination. Winners will represent their parties in the November general election.

Democratic candidates are Winston V. Buford, Eminence; Thad Bullock, Cape Girardeau; Bill D. Burlison, Cape Girardeau; John Havil, Sikeston; Jay Mondy, Fisk; Harry L. Patterson, Flat River; Edward Robb, Perryville; Bob Robison, Cape Girardeau; B. F. Rogers, Caruthersville; State Rep. David Rolwing, Charleston; and Jim Wallace, Scott City.

Republicans seeking the nomination are William Carhart, Alton; Thomas J. Cox, Poplar Bluff; and Vernon H. Landgraf, Cape Girardeau.

Congressman Paul C. Jones of Kennett, a Democrat, is not seeking re-election.

There are 14,598 registered voters in the county, about the same number as in 1966, the last primary election, where there was a 48 per cent voter turnout.

In the Democratic primary in Scott County there are contests for state representative from the 15th district, county judge of the first and second districts, sheriff, coroner, committeeman from Kelso and Sylvania townships and committeewoman from Richland township.

Each candidate in the Republican primary for county offices is unopposed.

In the 15th district state representative race Rep. Marvin E. Proffer of Jackson is opposed by Dean Wadlington of Scott City. The district includes portions of Scott and Cape Girardeau counties.

County Judge J. E. Childress of Sikeston is challenged by Nadean Dickerson of Sikeston for county judge of the first district.

In the race for county judge from the second district County Judge Bob Davis of Benton is opposed by Ray Evans of Oran and E. K. Riggs of Scott City.

In the sheriff's contest Sheriff John Dennis Benton, is opposed by Lynn Ingram and Bill Proffer, both of Sikeston. Ingram is circuit clerk.

For coroner incumbent Gene Nunnelee of Sikeston is opposed by John E. Carpenter of Sikeston.

Candidates for committeeman of Kelso township are Karl Von Kessel, Chaffee, and Kenneth Raney, Illmo. Candidates for committeewoman of Sylvania township are Paul J. Crader, Oran, and Kyrous M. Streeter, Panton.

Three are seeking the nomination for committeewoman of Richland township: Mrs. C. E. Felker, Mrs. Mary L. Isaacs and Mrs. Sue E. Shumper, all of Sikeston.

Czechs Win Truce With Soviets

BRATISLAVA, the reformist chief of the Czechoslovakia (AP) — Czechoslovak party.

The final language of the agreement was expected to include a Soviet promise not to interfere with Czechoslovakia's liberalization drive in exchange for Czechoslovak pledges to remain firmly in the Communist camp.

Three members of the Soviet delegation including Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin made a surprise appearance outside the meeting compound prior to the start of the talks.

They smiled as they were mobbed by camera men and walked down the hill from the meeting place to the Danube River.

They declined to answer newsmen's questions and after about two minutes returned to the compound to begin the meeting.

It included the leaders of the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria.

A mood of optimism swept the country following statements by Czechoslovak party chief Alexander Dubcek that the liberalization drive would continue.

Czechoslovak and Soviet leaders worked out the basis for the agreement in 3 1/2 days of talks earlier this week at Cierna, a Slovak railroad town near the Soviet frontier.

As the meeting ended, the months-long flow of propaganda against Czechoslovakia's liberalization course from Moscow and other hard-line Communist countries stopped and Prague's news media halted their counterfire.

Candidate Impact on GOP Delegates Gains Significance

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The battle for the Republican presidential nomination is about to shift from arguments over polls and estimates of delegate strength to the personal impact of the two top contenders.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon are ready to present their individual credentials to the politicians and the impact they make could have more to do with the result than everything controversial that has gone before.

Is Nixon who lost by an eyelash in 1960 to John F. Kennedy, sufficiently rehabilitated politically to be trusted with this year's nomination?

Or should the party pick Rockefeller, a sometime renegade, as its standardbearer in a topsy turvy year?

There is almost no serious thought among outlanders in this sweltering convention city that Gov. Ronald Reagan of California could wind up with the nomination.

While the nation awaited the two major candidates' facedown with something less than the excitement attendant to pro football, a great deal of not very effective politicking was going on behind the scenes here. Nixon supporters were putting on the pressure to get southern delegates to hold the line against any early ballot break toward Reagan.

In addition the Nixon people were trying to encourage a break away from favorite sons who were displaying a fresh determination to take a good look at the situation before committing themselves.

Among these Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio remained an inscrutable holdout. Nobody could forecast where Gov. George Romney might try to lead his Michigan delegation or where Gov. Spiro T. Agnew armament. A backlog of resentment against Rockefeller for not having campaigned for Barry Goldwater in 1964 was beginning to show itself. No delegate talked about it in those terms, factions staging sessions at the field in pre-convention spending for the elusive nomination, Reagan's people were not far behind.

The swarming pro-Rockefeller troops were adding up all of the bits and pieces they could turn up to argue that Nixon will not become the nominee Wednesday night. They pointed to breaks here and there in the Nixon shake hands with the faithful. George Wallace's American Independent Party prepared to hold its first state convention today in California amid more efforts to aid the starving populace of Biafra, the breakaway region involved in Nigeria's civil war. McCarthy said it is "intolerable that our own government has contented itself with what must be seen as vain and futile gestures while human life is at stake."

Both Humphrey and rival candidate Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., called for more efforts to aid the starving populace of Biafra, the breakaway region involved in Nigeria's civil war. McCarthy said it is "intolerable that our own government has contented itself with what must be seen as vain and futile gestures while human life is at stake."

One man claiming to be state chairman has scheduled his own convention in a downtown Sacramento hotel. Another group recognized by Wallace is meeting at a motel on the outskirts of the state capital.

"That's a sign of a healthy party, to have a little dissension," said Wallace as he arrived to address the motel meeting and be proclaimed as its choice for president.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey promised to fire Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey after a disputed report that the longtime draft boss had endorsed Wallace.

STEEL ROOF BEAMS are installed at the high school fieldhouse. Construction on the tension ring, which encircles the concrete block and brick walls, began July 1. Welding on the ring has been completed and erection of the beams started. The roof is expected to be completed in two months.

Fieldhouse Outline Rising

Steel workers for Pigeon-Thomas Construction Company of Memphis began work on the superstructure of the High School fieldhouse roof Monday.

Two large jutting interlaced steel triangular sections were in place.

It is expected to take 40 days to erect and weld the superstructure of the Lamella steel roof structure, Lennie Whitworth, engineer for Buchmueller, Whitworth &

Foust, architects and engineers, said.

The structure of the roof will be completed earlier but welding will have to be completed before the roof deck and roofing material can be applied.

The roof is designed to lace together to stresses and hinge them on the steel tension ring at the top of the brick and concrete circular walls.

The roof deck will consist of insul rock, a wood fiber and cement under pressure, which will form an insulation and give structural support to the roof.

To the deck, a rubberized synthetic overlay will be applied.

The roof is expected to be completed in three months. Duct work, electrical work, pouring of the concrete floor and application of the floor overlay will be started then.

The building is expected to be completed before January.

Roofway bleachers to seat more than 4,000 persons will be installed.

Czechs Win Truce With Soviets

BRATISLAVA, the reformist chief of the Czechoslovakia (AP) — Czechoslovakia's liberal leaders and their orthodox Communist critics agreed today on a declaration of principles that will permit the Czechoslovak liberalization to continue, unofficial sources reported.

Five Charges Filed After Tavern Fight

Leaders of the Communist parties of the Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany, Hungary, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia agreed on the declaration in a following fight at the City Bar, meeting lasting a little more than 136 East Front St., police two hours in this capital of reported today.

The sources said the threatening a man's life, carrying a concealed weapon, displaying a dangerous weapon, assault and general way and makes no specific mention of this property.

The party leaders were scheduled to sign it at the City Hall this afternoon.

Following the meeting, the leaders of the six parties placed wreaths on a monument to 7,000 Soviet soldiers who died in the liberation of Slovakia in World War II.

There were no security precautions during the ceremony and the party leaders, including the Leonid I. Brezhnev of the Soviet Union, mingled freely with the crowd.

There were shouts of "Long live friendship with the Soviet Union" and "Long live Dubcek." The latter was a reference to Alexander Dubcek, from his hand. The men then scuffled and broke the plate glass door.

Francis cut his wrist when the door was shattered and required treatment at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital. He was treated and released and taken into custody at 10 p.m. by Police.

Sgt. Ruben Templeton and patrolman John A. Evans were the arresting officers.

In other activity, Edward C. Graham, Charleston, was charged Friday with careless and imprudent driving. The car he was driving struck an automobile driven by John D. Gallagher, 411 Sikes, Thursday at Kentucky and Broadway, police reported.

Earthquake Rocks Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An earthquake struck Mexico City and a wide area of the country Friday, leaving at least four persons dead, scores injured and an estimated $2.4 million in damages.

The 7.2-second quake was the worst to hit this one-and-a-half mile high city in 11 years.

Highest hit in the capital was a nine-story office building on Insurgentes Avenue that was left leaning crazily. Police said the structure and nine others would have to be demolished because they might collapse.

14 Contesting for Congress Seat Stirs Interest in Primaries

BENTON - In Tuesday's primary elections interest in Southeast Missouri centers on the race for representative from the 10th congressional district.

Eleven candidates seek the Democratic nomination and three the Republican nomination. Winners will represent their parties in the November general election.

Democratic candidates are Winston V. Buford, Eminence; Thad Bullock, Cape Girardeau; Bill D. Burlison, Cape Girardeau; John Havis, Skeston; Jay Monday, Fick; Harry L. Patterson, Flat River; Edward Robb, Perryville; Bob Robison, Cape Girardeau; B. F. Rogers, Caruthersville; State Rep. David Rolwing, Charleston, and Jim Wallace, Scott City.

Republicans seeking the nomination are William Carhart, Alton; Thomas J. Cox, Poplar Bluff, and Vernon H. Landgraf, Cape Girardeau.

Congressman Paul C. Jones of Kennett, a Democrat, is not seeking re-election.

There are 14,598 registered voters in the county, about the same number as in 1966, the last primary election, where there was a 48 per cent voter turnout.

In the Democratic primary in Scott County there are contests for state representative from the 15th district, county judge of the first and second districts, sheriff, coroner, committeeman from Kelso and Sylvania townships and committeewoman from Richland township.

Each candidate in the Republican primary for county offices is unopposed.

In the 15th district state representative race Rep. Marvin E. Proffer of Jackson is opposed by Dean Wadlington of Scott City. The district includes portions of Scott and Cape Girardeau counties.

County Judge J. E. Childress of Skeston is challenged by Nadeen Dickerson of Skeston for county judge of the first district.

In the race for county judge from the second district County Judge Bob Davis of Benton is opposed by Ray Evans of Oran and E. K. Riggs of Scott City.

In the sheriff's contest Sheriff John Dennis, Benton, is opposed by Lynn Ingram and Bill Proffer, both of Skeston. Ingram is circuit clerk.

For coroner incumbent Gene Nunnelee of Skeston is opposed by John E. Carpenter of Skeston.

Candidates for committeeman of Kelso township are Karl Von Kessel, Chaffee, and Kenneth Raney, Illmo. Candidates for committeewoman of Sylvania township are Paul J. Crader, Oran, and Kyrus M. Streeter, Painton.

Three are seeking the nomination for committeewoman of Richland township: Mrs. C. E. Felker, Mrs. Mary L. Isaacs and Mrs. Sue E. Shumppert, all of Skeston.

Unopposed Democratic candidates are: State Sen. A. M. Spradling Jr., Cape Girardeau, state senator from the 27th district; Rep. Tony Heckemeyer, Skeston, state representative from the 15th district; Tom Gilmore, Skeston, prosecuting

Two Killed in Southeast Missouri

Two were killed Friday night in Southeast Missouri traffic accidents. The victims were John Frances Wilson, 50, Cape Girardeau and Richard Schindler, 21, St. Louis.

Wilson, driver of a 1963 Volkswagen, stopped his car on highway 67 at 10:25 p.m., one half mile north of Poplar Bluff.

Wilson's car stalled and as the truck went around the car, he stepped into the path of the truck and was run over by a 1966 IHC Strickland tractor-trailer, driven by Kenneth Glover, 45, Conway, Ark.

The body was taken to Greer-Croy-Fitch Funeral Home in Poplar Bluff and transferred to Steinhagen - Haman Funeral Home in Cape Girardeau.

Schindler, a passenger in a 1966 Ford, driven by Mark Robben, 20, Richmond Heights, was killed at 11:40 p.m. on highway 21, one mile south of Bellview in Iron county.

Another passenger, Linda Hoerig, 19, St. Louis, received a fractured foot and was taken to St. Marys hospital in Ironton. The driver was not injured.

Schindler's body was taken to White Funeral Home in Ironton, and transferred to Drehmann - Harrol Funeral Home in St. Louis.

The car was rounding a curve when the driver lost control, ran off the road and struck a bridge. Today at 12:30 a.m., on highway 61, three miles south of

Sikeston, Louis Curtis, 37, Matthews, was injured and a bridge damaged.

LOOK WHO'S ON THE STAFF

On a St. Louis television interview program the other day, Missouri Attorney General Norman Anderson denied that one of his office's employees, a Frank Tuter, was anything but an average citizen whose police arrests were for mere traffic violations. Before the program Anderson's chief primary opponent, Russell Millin, had charged that Anderson's unpublished payroll included Tuter who was generally known as a "police character."

Anderson was questioned on the TV interview by Denny Walsh, a St. Louis Globe-Democrat reporter who knows considerably more about Anderson and his record than has been published to date.
Anderson's reply to Walsh about Tuter went something like this, and we quote from the record:
"Now my opponent said that he (Tuter) is an underworld character. It's interesting though his definition of what an underworld character is. He said that he has had numerous arrests. I think he mentioned twenty. One thing, that this has occurred over a period of about twenty years, and he has arrests for left turn signals, some parking violations, some speeding charges, and this has occurred over a period of twenty years. Now if this makes him an underworld character, then I'm just confused as to... because I don't think that anyone can put their record up against anyone in the last twenty years if you are going - and these haven't been statutes - these have been misdemeanor violations, parking tickets, left turns, speeding, things of that nature."

After reading Anderson's reply to the newspaper reporter, one is inclined to dismiss Millin's charges. One is inclined to believe that Anderson is simply the subject to typical campaign slander. One is inclined to believe that Tuter, who is admittedly on Anderson's payroll, is simply a bad driver with a penchant for getting caught making harmless little "left turns."

This newspaper, however, has a copy of Tuter's record, and it is hard to believe Anderson was talking about the same man. While it is true that Tuter does have numerous traffic arrests over the past two decades, the police record we have of Tuter shows he has been arrested 24 times by the police and has four convictions.

Frank Tuter, alias Frankie Tut, has been convicted of the following crimes:

- Operating a gambling establishment;
- Selling black market cigarettes;
- Assaulting a police officer.

Despite these convictions, this man is on the staff of the Attorney General of Missouri, Norman Anderson, the state's top legal officer.

We can only speculate why.

Missourians are entitled to something better than this. They are entitled to the kind of staff in the attorney General's office that is free of convictions for such assorted crimes as operating a gambling establishment and assaulting police officers.

We believe the Democratic party will be sorry if it nominates Norman Anderson over Russ Millin, a former U. S. Attorney in western Missouri who has an outstanding record of service and who vigorously pursued a war on organized crime that earned for him the undying hatred of the mafia and gangster elements of the Kansas City area.

But this is the kind of Attorney General we want - a man who is hated by hoodlums, not a man who employs them.

Daily Dunklin Democrat

Why are we keeping our "hands off" in Czechs' Tiff with Russia when we are sticking our nose into every other country's business?

We've heard arguments pro and con on the gun law, but the fact is only law abiding citizens can be disarmed - others can't.

Living in a small city, such as Sikeston, has its compensations.

At 50 plus the memories of those days come back like a pleasant flood.

There was so much freedom and fun.

There was little to be afraid of in those days.

Juvenile delinquency was not a well known term. There weren't enough automobiles on the streets to present a hazard and the threat of runaway horses didn't normally present much danger either.

Most of the town drunks were harmless but occasionally a man went off his rocker from drink or other cause and had to be sent away.

Aside from the hypocrisy of prohibition most people obeyed the law. There were no other significant breakdown of law and order.

Yet "the good old days" doesn't accurately describe them because in many respects they weren't as good as today.

Germs for one thing were more to be feared. Epidemics of one kind or another took too many young lives.

But life was relaxed and easy.

There was kick-the-picket, a variation of hide-and-go-seek.

There were endless arguments about many subjects with which none of our friends were very familiar.

There was the club house that the boys built near the chicken house at the rear of our home and the first meal, which the boys themselves prepared in celebration. Chicken was in piece de resistance.

The fate of the chicken was carefully charted even before purchase.

Every member knew in advance whether he was to get the breast, neck, wing or gizzard.

There were the Hallowe'en pranks of pushing over outhouses, which if occupied, was so much the better.

There were the carefree days of fishing with a long pole, string, a lead sinker, a cork, hook with a wiggling worm for bait.

There was trapping and hunting in the winter, long walks through the woods. No one in those days condemned this as brutal or even thought about it in that light.

There were spirited games of horseshoes and backlot baseball and kite flying.

There was the gosh awful yelling back and forth across the street when all the houses in the neighborhood were quarantined.

There were the efforts to sell the neighbors dandelion greens to raise money to buy candy or go to a movie.

There were the neighborhood magic shows, usually broken up when a kid showed up with a $5 bill and demanded change or when the magician performed his tricks before a mirror, giving away his magic.

There was the barber who sold jawbreakers usually with a strand of freshly clipped hair as a bonus on every morsel.

Many of these pleasures are "out" for the present generation.

Let's hope that the "in" things give them as much pleasure a half century from now and that most of them live in such a careful way as to assure that they, too, will have the pleasure of recollection.

Every man has two ambitions: First, to own his own home - and second, to own a car to get away from his home!

We wonder who paid for the double page spread in the August 6th issue of Look Magazine for "Ethical" Ed Long.

It cost Slenker Callonan, Hoffa and Company a bushel and a peck of money.

We wonder of "Ethical" Ed thumbs the majority of the readers will overlook the lines that say paid political advertisement in the upper left hand corner.

"The Texas Right To Work Law guarantees and protects the right to join unions, as well as the right to refuse to join a union. Unions have expanded their membership and influence under this law, and repeal is not necessary to protect the right of working men to join together in unions for their mutual protection and benefit. The public policy of Texas as expressed by the Legislature and our Courts supports the Right To Work Law. Moreover, the Democratic platform on which all other Democrats and I were elected in 1962 called for the retention of that law. Therefore, I strongly oppose any legislation which calls for repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft - Hartley Act."

Male Order. In Miami, Mayor William Wohlforth pondered a letter from a Texas widow asking him to help her find a husband about 45 who 1) likes to hunt and fish, 2) loves horses, 3) will give her $10,000 cash (no checks) before the wedding.

There are people who do not gossip, but they furnish the material, which is worse.

29 persons killed: driver who was drinking, the driver who was speeding, and the driver who was doing both certainly gets the credit.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: The Miami convention will be grim; Nixon is supremely confident; Rockefeller has the front room, Nixon the back room.

MIAMI BEACH - Richard Nixon is so confident of emerging the winner from this, the biggest political contest, that he's told aides he won't come to Miami until Tuesday. His aides, with equal confidence, or perhaps Braggadocio, are predicting that Nixon will win by the time the roll call of states reaches Tennessee.

Meanwhile, Nixon is on the telephone personally directing every move made by his every move made by his Henchmen. They don't book an extra suite of rooms at the Hilton Plaza Hotel, where Nixon's headquarters are, without calling the boss in New York. They are cool, calculating, confident, and so is their boss in his law offices high above downtown Manhattan.

You would never guess from their conversation that the biggest handicap Nixon has had to overcome is the sickening fear among rank-and-file Republicans that "Nixon can't win." It results from the memory of that disastrous 1962 defeat when he ran for Governor of California, and that terrible display of temper at the press conference which followed in which he castigated California newspapers.

The whispered reminder that Nixon is a two - time loser and won the vice presidency only when he traveled piggyback on Eisenhower's broad shoulders is the most serious obstacle Nixon has to erase. His cohorts in Miami are doing a pretty good job of making people forget about it.

It's illustrated when you land at the airport. Gov. Rockefeller has pretty girls covered with "Rocky" buttons out to meet the delegates. But they don't know who the delegates are and look prettily at every arrival.

In contrast, Nixon has two of his men meet every plane. There are no girls to kiss new arrivals, no hands playing. But the two Henchmen do have a list of the delegates, pick the right men and announce "we have a car waiting for you."

En route to the hotel the delegates are romanced for Nixon.

SECRET AMMUNITION

Both Rockefeller and Nixon cherish as their most guarded possessions a file of every delegate and such pertinent information as who their bankers are, how much money they owe, the size of mortgage on their home. This intelligence can be highly useful when the chips are down.

Rockefeller's statistics are kept in a black book with a lock on it. Nixon's are kept in carefully guarded files.

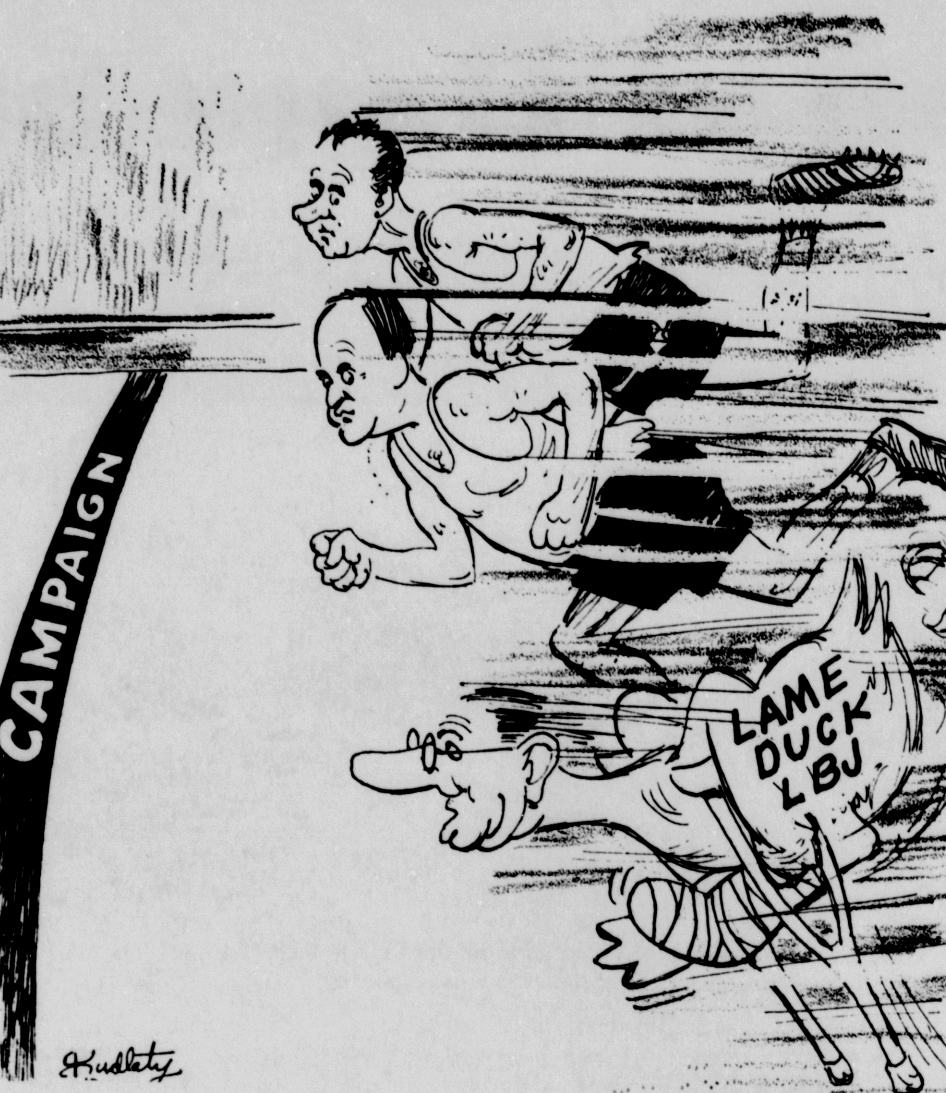

Nixon's operation gives the impression of professional smoothness. Rockefeller has stired up the visitors in the living extra suite of rooms at the Hilton Plaza Hotel, where the delegates pledged in the back room. And it's in the back rooms the final decisions are going to be made.

Rockefeller's cohorts are trying to do another Wendell Wilkie, recalling the so-called "barefoot boy of Wall Street" who took the 1940 Republican convention by storm.

However, what most people don't know is that the Wilkie strategy was planned well in advance. The Rockefeller know it, however, for their economic empire helped to plan it. Weeks before the convention, the Chase bank controlled by the Rockefeller family, was giving the word to GOP delegates to go for Wilkie.

In the current race, significantly, Rockefeller has permitted the power of his family fortune to be used. He used it for Eisenhower against the big eastern money of the Republican party made some remarkable converts for Ike at the last minute, as witness the conversion of the Pennsylvania delegation. They arrived in Chicago pledged to Taft. But the delegates, they received a call from Gov. John Fairless of U.S. Steel, they switched to Ike.

However, Nelson has given orders that this is not to be done for him. The use of the Rockefeller family fortune could mean the difference in the voting next week, but the Chase Manhattan Bank and Standard Oil of N.J. are being kept carefully on the sidelines.

Quebec. It is whether Canadians of largely British and French descent are to remain one nation or whether separatists, increasingly demanded in 90 per cent French-speaking Quebec, is to become the shape of the Canadian future. The campaign is one of personalities and paradoxes.

On the one side, there is Pierre Elliott Trudeau, a swinging, 48-year-old bachelor who took over as prime minister and head of the Liberal party this spring, promptly dissolving parliament and calling the election. Trudeau is a Quebecer himself, but takes his stand against separatism.

On the other is Robert Stanfield, 53, a family man from English-speaking Canada, former premier of Nova Scotia, who heads the Nova Scotia, the Progressive Conservative party. He talks of a "two-nation" policy that would grant Quebec considerably greater autonomy from the central government in Ottawa, although still within the confederation.

Quebec is the key as well as the issue. The province elects more than a third of parliament, and the vote may well turn on whether the appeal of a native son standing for unity with the English-speaking majority outweighs French Canada's deep-seated yearning for greater independence.

Americans have more than a casual interest in the outcome. Canada is not only our nearest but our warmest friend, and by far our most important trading partner. We share the world's longest unfortified border and responsibility for defense of the continent. NORAD, the North American Air Defense Command, is a joint American-Canadian operation. We are not our neighbor's keeper, but his welfare is of very real significance to our own.

This is old, but it has always been one of our favorites.

The young playboy took a blind date to an amusement park. They went for a ride on the Ferris wheel. The ride completed, she seemed rather bored.

"What would you like to do next?" he asked.

"I wanna be weighed," she said. So the young man took her over to the weight guesser. "112," said the man at the scale, and he was absolutely right.

Next they rode the roller coaster. After that, he bought her popcorn and cotton candy, then he asked what else she would like to do.

"I wanna be weighed," she said.

I really latched onto a square one tonight, though the young man, and using the excuse that he had developed a headache, he took the girl home.

The girl's mother was surprised to see her home so early, and asked, "What's wrong dear, didn't you have a nice time tonight?"

"Wowsy," said the girl.

"Ain't I a touch of sunshine?" said the demure mountain girl, preening. "You sure are a touch of sunshine," the revereer agreed. "But tonight I'm looking for moonshine."

The rich old gentleman and his wife were celebrating their 40th wedding anniversary and their three grown sons joined them for dinner. The old man was rather irritated when he discovered that none of the boys had bothered to bring a gift and after the meal, he drew them aside.

"You're grown men," he said, "and old enough to hear this. Your mother and I have never been legally married."

"What?" gasped one of the sons. "Do you mean to say we're all bastards?"

"Yes," snapped the old man, "and cheap ones, too."

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE: "Wal Clem, what's this here boy charged with?"

CONSTABLE: "He's charged with arson, Sam."

JUDGE: "Arson? Gol darn it, there's been altogether too much arson around here lately. Now son, you marry that girl!"

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

SHOWDOWN IN MIAMI

Labor Chiefs Confront Republican Policy Makers in Convention City

Miami Beach: - For a few days the Republicans have had to share this gold coast with some labor leaders who generally have it to themselves. The consequential clash came at the lush Fontainebleau, a hotel which deprived Italy of much of its marble.

This piquant, though potent bit of history unfortunately was overlooked by the ballot-counting media, although the confrontation had in it the makings of years of crises and days of endless headlines.

It developed when America's Mr. Labor, George Meany, in a quadrennial burst of bipartisanship, handed the Economic Affairs Subcommittee of the GOP Convention Platform Committee the AFL-CIO's vision of the future.

It was perfunctorily handed over and it was perfunctorily accepted.

Subcommittee Chairman Roman Hruska had his doubts about Mr. Meany's bipartisanship, and Mr. Meany had his doubts he could influence the committee.

Nonetheless, the document outlined what the powerful AFL-CIO will fight for in the next four years and what it will ask for, and probably get, at the Democratic convention.

After driving down from the Hotel Americana (coincidentally, Nelson Rockefeller's massive headquarters here), Mr. Meany and his colleagues made it clear they would fight for the following:

A 35-hour workweek, with no pay reduction from the standard 40-hour workweek. Labor wants this accomplished by a revision of the 30-year-old Fair Labor Standards Act - and labor means it.

American labor leadership will fight for a statutory 35-hour (perhaps 4 1/2-day week) in the next few years - and if Hubert Humphrey is elected, they positively expect to revise the law and shave the week.

A $2-an-hour minimum wage for all who work for a living. Having won a $1.60-an-hour minimum, labor now wants to up the floor to $2, not only for those in interstate commerce but for millions more, especially those employed in small retail and service firms and small farms, and as domestic help.

Mr. Meany's document reported that at least another 11 million non-supervisory employees in private industry must be included under the federal minimum wage statutes.

Double time for overtime.

The current legal standard of time and a half, says Mr. Meany, is outmoded and must be raised to double time. The last change in the law was made in 1938.

The labor delegation told the subcommittee that the federal government must be the employer of last resort. If there are men and women who can't find jobs, the government must create them.

At least one million public service jobs should be created immediately for the unemployed - and a million more later. It is Mr. Meany's contention that some 13 million persons were jobless at some time during the past year. About 3.5 million were unemployed for 15 weeks or more in '67.

In addition, some 1.7 million people had to work part-time because full-time work was not available in the first six months of '68.

So Mr. Meany concludes that in recent years there have been three to five million workers who have been unemployed for long periods of time, or have been seriously underemployed.

Labor now wants the government to make work for them. These jobs can be created in parks, schools, hospitals, playgrounds, libraries, public buildings and similar institutions - sort of a WPA project of the depression '30s.

Adjusting to automation. Mr. Meany is no Luddite. He would not trip up the computer or the electronic factories of the future.

But he wants the speed of technological change adjusted so that "industry, communities and workers can play to avoid and minimize disrupting effects."

He wants the government to set up a clearinghouse to monitor technological developments, and make forecasts of their impact. And he urges the establishment of a federal information and guidance service, to help unions and employers on request to adjust to automation through collective bargaining.

Mr. Meany also would have the government help relocate workers and their families from surplus labor communities to areas where jobs are plentiful.

Of course, old feuds arynot forgotten. Labor will fight again for repeal of the right to work law (14.B), and the right to picket a construction site, such as Cape Kennedy, and thereby halt all construction though the dispute is with but one employer on the site.

There is much more. Mr. Meany has put it all down on paper. Let this not come as a surprise to anyone after the next inauguration.

Saturday, August 3, 1968 Louis XIV forms his first cabinet. 1768.

LOOK WHO'S ON THE STAFF

On a St. Louis television interview program the other day, Missouri Attorney General Norman Anderson denied that one of his office's employees, a Frank Tuter, was anything but an average citizen whose police arrests were for mere traffic violations. Before the program Anderson's chief primary opponent, Russell Millin, had charged that Anderson's unpublished payroll included Tuter who was generally known as a "police character."

Anderson was questioned on the TV interview by Denny Walsh, a St. Louis Globe-Democrat reporter who knows considerably more about Anderson and his record than has been published to date.

Anderson's reply to Walsh about Tuter went something like this, and we quote from the record: "Now my opponent said that he (Tuter) is an underworld character. Despite these convictions, this man is on the staff of the Attorney General of Missouri, Norman Anderson, the state's top legal officer.

We can only speculate why.

Missourians are entitled to something better than this. They are entitled to the kind of staff in the attorney General's office that is free of convictions for such assorted crimes as operating a gambling establishment and assaulting police officers.

We believe the Democratic party will be sorry if it nominates Norman Anderson over Russ Millin, a former U. S. Attorney in western Missouri who has an outstanding record of service and who vigorously pursued a war on organized crime that earned for him the undying hatred of the mafia and gangster elements of the Kansas City area.

But this is the kind of Attorney General we want - a man who is hated by hoodlums, not a man who employs them.

Daily Dunklin Democrat

Why are we keeping our "hands off" in Czechs' Tiff with Russia when we are sticking our nose into every other country's business?

We've heard arguments pro and con on the gun law, but the fact is only law abiding citizens can be disarmed - others can't.

Living in a small city, such as Sikeston, has its compensations. At 50 plus the memories of those days come back like a pleasant flood.

There was so much freedom and fun. There was little to be afraid of in those days.

Juvenile delinquency was not a well known term. There weren't enough automobiles on the streets to present a hazard and the threat of runaway horses didn't normally present much danger either.

Most of the town drunks were harmless but occasionally a man went off his rocker from drink or other cause and had to be sent away.

Aside from the hypocrisy of prohibition most people obeyed the law. There were no other significant breakdown of law and order.

Yet "the good old days" doesn't accurately describe them because in many respects they weren't as good as today.

Germans for one thing were more to be feared. Epidemics of one kind or another took too many young lives.

But life was relaxed and easy.

There was kick-the-picket, a variation of hide-and-go-seek.

There were endless arguments about many subjects with which none of our friends were very familiar.

There was the club house that the boys built near the chicken house at the rear of our home and the first meal, which the boys themselves prepared in celebration. Chicken was in piece de resistance.

The fate of the chicken was carefully charted even before purchase.

Every member knew in advance whether he was to get the breast, neck, wing or gizzard.

There were the Halloween pranks of pushing over outhouses, which if occupied, was so much the better.

There were the carefree days of fishing with a long pole, string, a lead sinker, a cork, hook with a wiggling worm for bait.

There was trapping and hunting in the winter, long walks through the woods. No one in those days condemned this as brutal or even thought about it in that light.

There were spirited games of horseshoes and backlot baseball and kite flying.

There was the gosh awful yelling back and forth across the street when all the houses in the neighborhood were quarantined.

There were the efforts to sell the neighbors dandelion greens to raise money to buy candy or go to a movie.

There were the neighborhood magic shows, usually broken up when a kid showed up with a $5 bill and demanded change or when the magician performed his tricks before a mirror, giving away his magic.

There was the barber who sold jawbreakers usually with a strand of freshly clipped hair as a bonus on every morsel.

Many of these pleasures are "out" for the present generation.

Let's hope that the "in" things give them as much pleasure a half century from now and that most of them live in such a careful way as to assure that they, too, will have the pleasure of recollection.

Every man has two ambitions: First, to own his own home - and second, to own a car to get away from his home!

We wonder who paid for the double page spread in the August 6th issue of Look Magazine for "Ethical" Ed Long.

It cost Slenker Callonan, Hoffa and Company a bushel and a peck of money.

We wonder of "Ethical" Ed thumbs the majority of the readers will overlook the lines that say paid political advertisement in the upper left hand corner.

"The Texas Right To Work Law guarantees and protects the right to join unions, as well as the right to refuse to join a union. Unions have expanded their membership and influence under this law, and repeal is not necessary to protect the right of working men to join together in unions for their mutual protection and benefit. The public policy of Texas as expressed by the Legislature and our Courts supports the Right To Work Law. Moreover, the Democratic platform on which all other Democrats and I were elected in 1962 called for the retention of that law. Therefore, I strongly oppose any legislation which calls for repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft - Hartley Act."

There are people who do not gossip, but they furnish the material, which is worse.

29 persons killed: driver who was drinking, the driver who was speeding, and the driver who was doing both certainly gets the credit.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: The Miami convention will be grim; Nixon is supremely confident; Rockefeller has the front room, Nixon the back room.

MIAMI BEACH - Richard Nixon is so confident of emerging the winner from this, the biggest political contest, that he's told aides he won't come to Miami until Tuesday. His aides, with equal confidence, or perhaps Braggadocio, are predicting that Nixon will win by the time the roll call of states reaches Tennessee.

Meanwhile, Nixon is on the telephone personally directing every move made by his Henchmen. They don't book an extra suite of rooms at the Hilton Plaza Hotel, where Nixon's headquarters are, without calling the boss in New York. They are cool, calculating, confident, and so is their boss in his law offices high above downtown Manhattan.

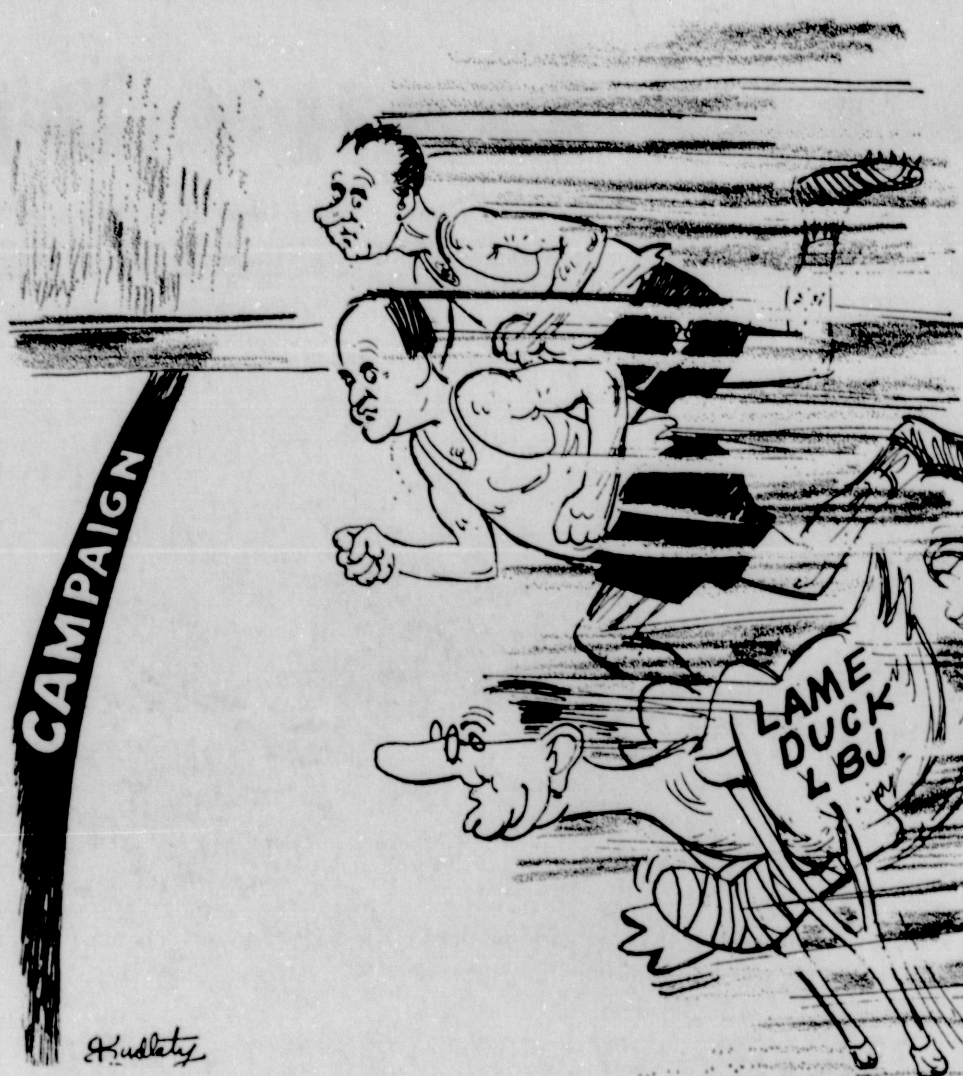

You would never guess from their conversation that the biggest handicap Nixon has had to overcome is the sickening fear among rank-and-file Republicans that "Nixon can't win." It results from the memory of that disastrous 1962 defeat when he ran for Governor of California, and that terrible display of temper at the press conference which followed in which he castigated California newspapers.

The whispered reminder that Nixon is a two - time loser and won the vice presidency only when he traveled piggyback on Eisenhower's broad shoulders is the most serious obstacle Nixon has to erase. His cohorts in Miami are doing a pretty good job of making people forget about it.

It's illustrated when you land at the airport. Gov. Rockefeller has pretty girls covered with "Rocky" buttons out to meet the delegates. But they don't know who the delegates are and look prettily at every arrival.

In contrast, Nixon has two of his men meet every plane. There are no girls to kiss new arrivals, no bands playing. But the two Henchmen do have a list of the delegates, pick the right men and announce "we have a car waiting for you."

The overriding issue is national unity - in a word,

THE LONG AFTERNOON

ZURICH - It was Ray Towne, chief of public relations for Douglas Aircraft, on the phone.

"We're delivering a new DC-8 jet freighter to Swissair. It's going nonstop Long Beach to Europe over the Great Circle. The Swiss will invite you. How about it?"

My brittle arm twisted off at the elbow.

IT IS 11:35 a.m. The thundering, shuddering take-off as we hoist 24,000 gallons of fuel. The climbing turn left toward the Pacific, over the red-and-black - stacked Queen Mary, now being fitted as a hotel, the turn once more over brown Catalina, and the coast again at Huntington Beach where the tanned surfers are slanting in on the broad waves.

12:12 p.m. Las Vegas to the left. Hoover Dam and blue Lake Mead under the starboard wing. Altitude 37,000.

12:50 p.m. Salt Lake City and its green - gray dead sea 30 miles to the west. Persistent summer snows cling to the clefts of the high Wasatch.

THE COCKPIT visit. Captain Wilhelm Knecht and co-pilot Max Ruedlinger at the controls. Flight Commander Ernie Huerzeler explains how the new computer takes indicated air speed, cranks in the pressure, altitude and outside temperature and comes up with true air speed, how the doppler gives a continuous reading of true ground speed. A long cry from the hand - rotated E6-B and the scribbled best - guesses of 20 years ago.

2 p.m. Dickinson, N. D., and the zebra - striped fields that characterized the world's greatest breadbasket. That plumb - line east and west is the Northern Pacific.

2:33 p.m. (Still Pacific Daylight time, for there's no point in trying to move the watch ahead as the degrees of latitude compress and the time zones shorten.) Winnipeg 20 miles northwest. The wheat ends abruptly. The woods come in with 100,000 lakes.

Here are the blue wounds of the great glaciers, deep pools filled with hungry, unsophisticated fish that would take an old sock.

3:43 p.m. James Bay above Akimiski Island. Hudson Bay on the left, sprinkled with ice floes - a forbidding inland ocean even in midsummer, cloaking forever the fate of Henry Hudson and his child, set adrift in an open boat by mutinous sailors four centuries ago.

4:30 p.m. The Canadian Shield, a melancholy wasteland of bare - scraped granite, cut in north - south ridges by the grinding ice of ages past, home of iron, nickel and cobalt and many fortunes yet to be made by the adventurous and daring.

Here is the great Ungava Bay to the north and guarded by Cape Hopes Advance, named, doubtless, by some long - departed optimist who thought he had found the Northwest Passage to the riches of the Indies.

5:11 p.m. the top-tip of Labrador. Mile - high Mount Cirque, heavy with snow and dipping to a deep fiord and the tiny Eskimo village of Ramah.

BUT WHAT'S THIS? A myriad of white sails? A regatta - here? No, icebergs, standing down the Davis Strait. Here are the floating fossils of Time, made of snows that fell while Neanderthals still lived, when the Pyramids were new.

6:05 p.m. Greenland. Black nunataks rising above curving Mississippi of ice. To the north the 5,000 - foot icecap. A pink prairie in the setting sun.

6:40 p.m. The ocean, now. Home of the roistering Vikings who dared magnificently, wrote miserably, and sprinkled the New World with mystery, leaving a cryptic rune-stone in a rattlesnake glen above Heavener, Okla.

8:00 p.m. The sun is misbehaving. It went down reluctantly on the port quarter an hour ago, but the redness persisted, moved slowly abeam, and now the sun is coming up again on the port bow.

8:50 p.m. Scotland. John O'Groats to the right, the bronze Orkneys to the left. We are heading for Copenhagen where Swissair does instrument modification on new planes with SAS so that they may exchange crews.

9:35 p.m. Jutland. Home of the terrible Dutes who caused the ancient Britons to build alarm fires on every headland.

9:45 p.m. The lovely green island of Fyn and there is Odense, birthplace of the gentle Hans Christian Andersen who lived his life in a world of elves and fairy godmothers.

9:55 p.m. The rich farms of Sjælland, moving swiftly now. There's the Oresund ahead and Sweden just beyond, and here's Copenhagen with its little bronze mermaid on her harbor rock and a gleaming white Russian liner on her way out to the world.

10:12 p.m. (6:12 a.m. local time). Kastrup Airport where, as a kid 39 years ago, I finished my first commercial air adventure on a rattling single - engined Fokker up from Amsterdam.

Quebec. It is whether Canadians Next they rode the roller of largely British and French coaster. After that, he bought descent are to remain one nation her popcorn and cotton candy or whether separatists, then he asked what else sh increasingly demanded in 90 per cent French-speaking Quebec, is "I wanna be weighed," sh to become the shape of the aid. Canadian future. The campaign is one of personalities and paradoxes.

On the one side, there is Pierre Elliott Trudeau, a swinging, 48-year-old bachelor who took over as prime minister and head of the Liberal party this spring, promptly dissolving parliament and calling the election. Trudeau is a Quebecer himself, but takes his stand against separation.

On the other is Robert Stanfield, 53, a family man from English-speaking Canada, former premier of Nova Scotia, who heads the major opposition, the Progressive Conservative party. He talks of a "two-nation" policy that would grant Quebec considerably greater autonomy from the central government in Ottawa, although still within the confederation.

Quebec is the key as well as the issue. The province elects more than a third of parliament, and the vote may well turn on whether the appeal of a native son standing for unity with the English-speaking majority outweighs French Canada's deep-seated yearning for greater independence.

Americans have more than a casual interest in the outcome. Canada is not only our nearest but our warmest friend, and by far our most important trading partner. We share the world's longest unfortified border and responsibility for defense of the continent. NORAD, the North American Air Defense Command, is a joint American-Canadian operation.

We are not our neighbor's keeper, but his welfare is of very real significance to our own.

This is old, but it has always been one of our favorites. The young playboy took a blind date to an amusement park. They went for a ride on the Ferris wheel. The ride completed, she seemed rather bored.

"What would you like to do next?" he asked.

"I wanna be weighed," she said. So the young man took her over to the weight guesser.

"112," said the man at the scale, and he was absolutely right.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE: "Wal Clem, what's this here boy charged with?"

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

SHOWDOWN IN MIAMI: Labor Chiefs Confront Republican Policy Makers in Convention City

Miami Beach: - For a few days the Republicans have had to share this gold coast with some labor leaders who generally have it to themselves. The consequential clash came at the lush Fontainebleau, a hotel which deprived Italy of much of its marble.

This piquant, though potent bit of history unfortunately was overlooked by the ballot-counting media, although the confrontation had in it the makings of years of crises and days of endless headlines.

It developed when America's Mr. Labor, George Meany, in a quadrennial burst of bipartisanship, handed the Economic Affairs Subcommittee of the GOP Convention Platform Committee the AFL-CIO's vision of the future.

It was perfunctorily handed over and it was perfunctorily accepted.

Subcommittee Chairman Roman Hruska had his doubts about Mr. Meany's bipartisanship, and Mr. Meany had his doubts he could influence the committee.

Nonetheless, the document outlined what the powerful AFL-CIO will fight for in the next four years and what it will ask for, and probably get, at the Democratic convention.

After driving down from the Hotel Americana (coincidentally, Nelson Rockefeller's massive headquarters here), Mr. Meany and his colleagues made it clear they would fight for the following:

A 35-hour workweek, with no pay reduction from the standard 40-hour workweek.

Labor wants this accomplished by a revision of the 30-year-old Fair Labor Standards Act - and labor means it.

American labor leadership will fight for a statutory 35-hour (perhaps 4 1/2-day week) in the next few years - and if Hubert Humphrey is elected, they positively expect to revise the law and shave the week.

A $2-an-hour minimum wage for all who work for a living.

Having won a $1.60-an-hour minimum, labor now wants to up the floor to $2, not only for those in interstate commerce but for millions more, especially those employed in small retail and service firms and small farms, and as domestic help.

Mr. Meany's document reported that at least another 11 million non-supervisory employees in private industry must be included under the federal minimum wage statutes.

Double time for overtime. The current legal standard of time and a half, says Mr. Meany, is outmoded and must be raised to double time. The last change in the law was made in 1938.

Full employment. The labor delegation told the subcommittee that the federal government must be the employer of last resort. If there are men and women who can't find jobs, the government must create them.

At least one million public service jobs should be created immediately for the unemployed - and a million more later. It is Mr. Meany's contention that some 13 million persons were jobless at some time during the year last. About 3.5-4 million were unemployed for 15 weeks or more in '67.

In addition, some 1.7 million people had to work part-time because full-time work was not available in the first six months of '68.

So Mr. Meany concludes that in recent years there have been three to five million workers who have been unemployed for long periods of time, or have been seriously underemployed.

Labor now wants the government to make work for them. These jobs can be created in parks, schools, hospitals, playgrounds, libraries, public buildings and similar institutions - sort of a WPA project of the depression '30s.

Adjusting to automation. Mr. Meany is no Luddite. He would not trip up the computer or the electronic factories of the future.

But he wants the speed of technological change adjusted so that "industry, communities and workers can play to avoid and minimize disrupting effects."

He wants the government to set up a clearinghouse to monitor technological developments, and make forecasts of their impact. And he urges the establishment of a federal information and guidance service, to help unions and employers on request to adjust to automation through collective bargaining.

Mr. Meany also would have the government help relocate workers and their families from surplus labor communities to areas where jobs are plentiful.

Of course, old feuds arynot forgotten. Labor will fight again for repeal of the right to work law (14.B), and the right to picket a construction site, such as Cape Kennedy, and thereby halt all construction though the dispute is with but one employer on the site.

There is much more. Mr. Meany has put it all down on paper. Let all this not come as a surprise to anyone after the next inauguration.

Sikeston Couple Honored on Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Alva W. Estes, 1624 Matthews, were guests of honor July 21 at a reception observing their 50th wedding anniversary. Hosts were their son, C. W. Estes, and daughter, Linda.

Mr. and Mrs. Estes received their friends and relatives from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Fellowship Baptist church.

The fellowship hall was decorated in gold and white for the occasion. Behind the service table was a wall covered with streamers of gold and white crepe paper. The service table was adorned with a white linen cloth overlaid with gold net. White wedding bells tied with gold cabbage roses decorated the corners. Glowing white tapers in silver candleholders flanked the three tiered wedding cake decorated in gold roses and swans. A silver coffee service graced one end of the table. Golden punch was served from a silver punch bowl. Cookies, mints and nuts were served from silver trays. Wedding bells hung overhead the service table. Serving were Miss Barbara Armour, Miss Connie Woods and Miss Karen Spivey.

The gift table was covered with a gold cloth overlaid with lace. This table was adorned with white wedding bells and gold cabbage roses. The table was centered with an arrangement of white bells inscribed 50th in gold. From these bells were gold and white streamers which were secured to the table. Miss Linda Estes, granddaughter, was in charge of the gift table.

Miss Jan Hitt was in charge of the guest book which was placed on a table covered in gold and overlaid with lace. The table was centered with two wedding bells inscribed with 50th.

Mrs. Estes was attired in a blue printed voile dress, complemented with white shoes

Mr. and Mrs. Alva W. Estes and gloves. She wore a purple throat orchid accented with gold ribbon. Out-of-town guests were, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gunter and Renee, Belleville, Ill., Lewis Gunter, East St. Louis, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. George Allison, Arbyrd, Mr. and Mrs. Don Stumbaugh, Burdette, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. Bill Blackman, Bertrand, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Selby, John L. Allison, Mr. and Mrs. Ashley DeVault, all of Arbyrd, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold White, Arlington Heights, Ill.

Kennett Forms Run For Your Life Club

KENNETT - Miss Linda Langley, girls physical education instructor at the high school, announced that a jogging club for women will be organized Aug. 12.

Any woman (out of high school and older) who is interested is asked to meet at high school track at 8 p.m. on the above date.

Miss Langley said that the club will be known as the "Run For Your Life Club" and that it will meet two nights per week as a group and that smaller groups can meet three additional times per week as it is convenient.

She said that running has been proven to be the best exercise for all over body tonement and that a recent study revealed that a running program has been helpful to persons suffering heart attacks, diabetes victims and even arthritic symptoms. In some instances inches are lost even if pounds are not, she said.

Miss Langley revealed that to begin the program the club members would be walking and would gradually work up to distance running.

There are only two things Miss Langley asks of potential club members. "First, I would like for everyone to be willing to run and secondly, it is advisable that persons planning to join the club have a physical checkup to be certain it is alright for them to participate in a program such as this."

An ideal running program, she said, is 16 weeks, and when the weather is bad, she hopes to continue the program indoors providing the gymnasium is available.

There will be no charge she emphasized and the club members should only be at the track about 20 minutes on nights the group is in session.

CREDIT CALCULATOR - MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) A Consumer Credit Calculator developed by two Kansas State University professors is attracting nationwide attention.

Dr. Richard L. D. Morse and Mrs. Albie Rasmussen of the University's Department of Family Economics designed the calculator to find the annual interest percentage rate for consumers who are comparison shopping for credit.

The calculator is a series of simplified actuarial tables presented on a one-page form. It will quickly disclose that a 6 per cent car finance quotation actually totals about 11 per cent for a 12-month contract.

It also helps provide dollar amounts of interest over a given period, even on a sliding percentage interest basis, thus yielding total cost and annual interest rate. Spokesmen at K-State said the calculator is now being used by credit unions, high schools, colleges and universities.

Dexter, Carl H. Holt of Bloomfield, Wilson R. Lefler and Mrs. Lillian Miller, both of Dexter, have been released from Doctors hospital.

Mrs. Mayme D. Lucas of Parma, Joe McCain of Essex, Mrs. Lena K. Pedigo of Dexter, Goldie Quinn of Bernie and Mrs. Lila F. Smith of Parma have been admitted to Poplar Bluff hospital.

IT'S A GREAT LIFE IF YOU WEAKEN!

One of our American ideals is self-sufficiency. Many of us try to follow it and find the price to be broken health and discouraged minds. Sometimes, too late, we discover we cannot be self-sufficient. But it's a great life if you weaken. God's help and strength await the one who has learned only God's sufficiency is sufficient. If the realization of your weakness brings you to God, you find the true strength.

Reagan Signs Bill to Restore Hollywood Films

SACRAMENTO, Calif. AP - With his old movie colleagues looking on, Gov. Ronald Reagan signed into law a tax bill he predicts will "restore Hollywood as once again the world's film capital."

The measure eliminates a tax that movie makers argue is driving American producers overseas and aggravating unemployment in the industry.

The sound stages and lots of Hollywood bustled during the years when Reagan made his living on the screen.

The tax was levied on the material value of the film on Hollywood shelves at the March 1 property taxation date, plus such intangible values as who starred in the film, and predictions of its profit. The bill would apply the tax only to the actual value of the film.

The POWER of FAITH

Faith in Atlanta is exemplified by these two men, Albert J. Bows, Jr., president of Atlanta Chamber of Commerce (right) and Harman D. Moore, executive director, Christian Council of Metropolitan Atlanta.

Early in March, 1968, Mr. Bows was encouraged by a minister to speak to the Christian Council of the growing tensions and problems of jobs, housing, schools, parks and transportation. In his speech entitled, "An opportunity for the Church and for Atlanta" he relieved the clergy, and laymen as well, to help change human attitudes, in order to relieve racial tensions so that these problems could be solved.

Dr. Moore, whose 25 years of experience as a U. S. Army chaplain had given him deep insight into these problems, was enthusiastic. He and other members of the Christian Council unanimously endorsed a resolution to "respond to the urban crisis." The Jewish community also supported the council's efforts. Mr. Bows had three specific suggestions for the church:

- 1. To work on at least one public housing project.
- 2. To encourage employers to help provide jobs.
- 3. To provide more interchange of ideas and activities between white and Negro churches.

Mr. Bows ended his speech with this plea: "Help us as individuals to become so involved with our concern for each other that there will be no need for violence, tensions or pressures in trying to solve our problems. If we can do all of this, maybe some day we can learn to live in the same community peacefully, with dignity and respect for each other."

Changing Rodeo Scene

"This is the way a cowboy used to be: He rolled his own smokes from a Bull Durham sack, drank his whiskey from the bottle. He cursed, fought, roped, rode, wrestled steers and fixed a windmill.

"On the rodeo circuit he was a curly wolf and he had to do it all - ride, rope, bulldog, etc., - to make a living."

That is what Jim Trinkle, sports columnist for the Fort Worth, Tex., Star-Telegram, wrote in a recent column when a professional Rodeo Cowboys Association rodeo was in town. But Trinkle is aware of the changing rodeo scene, and he continued:

"This is the cowboy now: He's a college man and does... commercials. He takes a splash of soda in his scotch (make it with a twist of lemon, ma'am) and in the rodeo business he's a specialist.

"Competition is so keen," says steer wrestler Jack Roddy, "that you find most guys going for one event. The purses are so good nowadays that specialists are the rule.

"There's a cowboy here who's one of the best bareback bronc riders in the country. But we wouldn't let him ride in one of the parades because we were afraid he'd fall off his horse.

He's used to holding on to that bareback bronc rigging and riding a certain way. It's not like sittin' a horse."

Jack has ridden the bucking horses; straddled the steers, too. But it was like trying to stand a piece of spaghetti on end. He stands 6-5. So he's a bulldogger, period.

"I've got too much body to control on a bronc," he said. "Most steer wrestlers are big - like myself, Jim Bynum and John Hatley. Bronc riders are little."

Jack is 30 years old. You might say he has been living a dream for 28 years. He got his first pony on his dad's San Jose, Calif., ranch when he was two.

"I never wanted to be anything except a cowboy," he said. "We've got two nice bars in San Francisco and I don't have to do this for a living. But I'd like to win another championship."

In high school he drew horses in art class. His phrase to describe his thoughts then is "I'd sit around in class and rope my boot." Most of his waking thoughts homed in on saddle leather and a good horse.

Rodeoing has come a lot of miles and a few million dollars since Roddy won the all-around intercollegiate championship and college steer wrestling title at Cal Poly in 1959.

"Harley May set the money-winning record with $19,000 in 1954," he said. "Ten years later C. R. Boucher broke the record, but only by $400. I won $22,400 bulldogging in '66 and Roy Duvall broke my record last year with $30,300. Larry Mahan won $52,000 as all-around champion last year, and that's the way the money has jumped up. We've got 10 million people coming to see us, and there's $3.5 million in purses.

"Cowboying has changed. We're not a bunch of drinkers, fighters and tobacco chewers. If a guy writes a hot check, he's going to get suspended. We've got a rule book and we're going to keep it spot clean."

Roddy is a director in the Rodeo Cowboys Association. He wouldn't trade it for a seat in the White House. There is a certain nobility about a man who is dead sure that his station in life is the best there is. Jack Thomas Roddy does.

"This sport," he said, "is plumb independent. I've got a boy and I'd like for him to be a cowboy. People like cowboys... cowboys don't have a bunch of agents and lawyers like other athletes. They don't have bedchambers.

"This hat cost me $50 and I got on a pair of boots worth $120. My clothes are tailor-made in Denver, but they're cowboy clothes. I'm a cowboy and I want people to know I'm a cowboy. I'm proud to be a cowboy."

Adding to Trinkle's column, the R. C. A. said today Roddy has taken complete command in the early 1966 race for the steer wrestling crown.

When Roddy won the title in 1966, he had pocketed $6,223 after the Redbluff, Calif., rodeo in mid-April.

Roddy's money has been won with skills as scientific as Billy Casper's touch with a putter. Swooping down from a horse to the horns of a 700 pound steer running 30 miles an hour or better, bringing the animal to a halt and then to the ground - all in eight seconds or less - is not child's play.

For a better look at the subject attend next week's Jaycee Bootheel rodeo, starting Thursday.

Holtzman Cools St. Louis Cairo Takes Two

ST. LOUIS (AP)—There's a change in the way Ken Holtzman is pitching for the Chicago Cubs, and something familiar about the way the other clubs are not hitting him.

Holtzman, the Cubs' polished lefty, polished off the St. Louis Cardinals on two hits Friday night to lead Chicago to a 3-0 victory.

It was Holtzman's third straight shutout, something that seems to be habit-forming for National League pitchers this year, and it was the fourth straight victory for the Cubs.

It all came about because of the change, or more correctly, the change-up.

"Concentration and a changeup," Manager Leo Durocher said, was the secret to Holtzman's string.

"He's worked hard to develop the change-up. He worked with (pitching coach Joe) Becker on it."

He did, indeed, Becker said, adding "the difficult part was to throw it with the same motion."

The swift lefty threw it with stunning success through the first five innings during which time no Cardinal got a hit.

Julian Javier finally broke through with a single in the sixth.

Tim McCarver added another hit in the seventh.

That was it, at least as far as the Cardinal hitting was concerned. "It was the best game I ever pitched," Holtzman (8-7) said. "I might have had better stuff in other games, but as far as smartness and strategy was concerned, it was my best game."

While Holtzman was showing off his smarts and strategy, the Cubs hit Larry Jaster (8-7) for all their runs in the fifth inning.

Randy Hundley opened the inning with a single. Then Jim Hickman, Aldolpho Phillips and Holtzman singled for two runs. Ron Willis came in to relieve and after a couple of outs, including a sacrifice, Billy Williams was intentionally walked to load the bases. Ron Santo was unintentionally walked to drive in the third run.

And Holtzman kept showing the Cardinals his smarts.

The way Durocher explained it: "He's not just playing catch with Hundley any more. He is a pitcher now. He's using more finesse."

In their effort to return to winning form today, the Cardinals scheduled Ray Washburn (10-3) to take the mound against the Cubs' Bill Hands (11-6).

CHARLESTON -- Cairo's entry into the Babe Ruth invitational baseball tournament walked away with the two big prizes last night as they defeated the host, 4-2, for the championship and won the Sportmanship award.

Charleston out hit the winners 6-4, but Cairo took advantage of the hosts' miscues for their runs and the title.

Steve Carlisle led Charleston in the hitting department with a two for three showing at the plate, including a solo homer for his team's first tally.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes presented the trophies.

Charleston will host about a 9 and 10 year old tournament Aug. 12-16.

NEW YORK AP - Dukla of Czechoslovakia was selected today to oppose the Israeli National team in an international soccer exhibition match Sunday Sept. 15 at Yankee Stadium.

Dukla, the 10-time Czechoslovakian soccer champion, last appeared in the United States three years ago, placing second in the International Soccer League's Challenge Cup. The Czechs won the title four straight times from 1961-64.

BALLSTON SPA, N. Y. AP - One of the problems in the race was in keeping the entries from devouring each other.

The contest, held not far from Saratoga Raceway, was won by the big green racing frog, who outdistanced such other speedsters as beetles, moles, loads, garter snakes and large ants.

The San Francisco Warriors and the Oakland Oaks will have to wait at least a month to find out which team Rick Barry will play basketball for this year.

Final arguments were heard Wednesday in the suit brought by the Warriors of the National Basketball Association to keep Barry from playing for the Oaks of the American Basketball Association.

Superior Court Judge Walter Carpeneti promised a ruling by the end of August and asked the Warriors to submit a brief on related cases that will back up their arguments. The Oaks will get a chance to reply.

Barry's lawyer, Robert Holtzman, argued that Barry's absence from the Warriors' lineup last year after signing with the Oaks was not responsible for the team's poor attendance and results last year.

Barry sat out last season when a court order restrained him from playing for anyone but the Warriors. The team is now arguing that he must play one more year to fulfill his contract.

The Detroit Tigers have a secret weapon that they believe will carry them to the American League pennant this year.

"To be more explicit, they have a pitching coach with a secret weapon," says Pat Harmon.

In an article in the August issue of Success Unlimited magazine, Pat Harmon discusses "The Detroit Tigers' Secret Weapon."

Harmon is sports editor of the Cincinnati Post and Times-Star.

Harmon describes John Sain as "the best pitching coach in baseball."

Sain's secret weapon, he says, is to use "motivational books, magazines, and tapes to inspire his pitching corps to reach new heights."

John Sain was pitching coach of the pennant-winning Yankees in 1961, '62 and '63. He coached the Minnesota Twins to a first in 1965 and second in 1966. And last year the Detroit Tigers finished second.

The Detroit Tigers and their secret weapon seemed well on the way to winning the pennant. At the All-Star break, the Tigers were leading the American League by 9½ games.

What's Sain's secret?

Those who have watched him work say he has a system.

1. "He builds a man's confidence through his ability to get inside a man and help him bring out his best.

2. "He motivates the man to explore and develop his full potential.

3. "He shows him a new pitch... but only if the man needs one.

4. "Sain defends his pitchers and protects them from all nonconstructive criticism and negative second-guessing by others."

Sain believes in the mental approach. "What you believe and conceive, you can achieve," he says, quoting a well-known inspirational writer.

The famed pitching coach stresses the positive mental approach and every pitcher reads Success Unlimited magazine.

Sain gives inspirational tapes and records to his friends. He thinks that the money spent is well invested.

"If I can spend a few dollars and show a man how to help himself, that's better than a night on the town," he says. "When you blow yourself to a night on the town, what have you got left in the morning to show for your money? Nothing."

He recommends that his pitchers read motivational books such as "The Success System That Never Fails," by W. Clement Stone, "Think and Grow Rich" by Napoleon Hill, and "I Dare You" by William Danforth.

Sain believes you must have a goal, and a plan to reach your goal. This he calls the right mental attitude.

And he goes on: "I think all of us should pay more attention to learning to control our attitude through our subconscious mind even though I realize some people still laugh at these things."

As Pat Harmon says, "the American League batters who have to face that Detroit pitching staff every day aren't laughing."

Hillsboro, Mo., will play Beaverdale, Iowa, tonight in the championship game of the senior Little League baseball tournament.

The winner will go to the regional tourney in Des Moines next week.

Hillsboro defeated Hugoton, Kan., 6-5 Thursday night to reach the finals.

The U. S. Basketball Writers Association presented a 1967 brochure award to Kansas University Thursday.

The awards went to seven schools or their outstanding basketball informational booklets.

Oklahoma received a similar award from the Football Writers Association of America.

Carl Yastrzemski and umpire Al Salerno burst into a heated argument after a third strike call which ended Thursday night's 1-0 New York victory over Boston. The umpire says he is reporting the incident to American League President Joe Cronin for further action.

The slugging Red Sox outfielder argued briefly on the field, then the verbal battle really exploded under the stands as reported by Pat Horne in today's editions of the Boston Record American.

"I will positively file a report on him with Mr. Cronin, and it will be up to the president to take further action," Salerno said. "Since the game was completed there's nothing else I can do."

PINE BROOK, N. J. AP - Bill Ertel of Point Pleasant, N. J., won the first of two 25-lap races for three-quarter midget autos at the Pine Brook Stadium Friday night. In the second race, Bob Watkins of Levittown, Pa., was the winner.

Stars Dent Scoring Column But Lose 34-17

CHICAGO (AP) — The College All-Stars didn't win Friday night against the Green Bay Packers but they managed to score both against the Packers and for the pro teams for whom they play.

The final score in the 5th annual midsummer football classic was 34-17 in favor of Green Bay.

It was an unprecedented fifth straight loss for the All-Stars in the series but it left the pros licking their chops waiting for their new draft choices to arrive.

It also produced a chink in the Green Bay armor—you can run against the Packers.

For the first time in three years an All-Star team dented the scoring column against the Packers.

Larry Csonka, the Syracuse All-American headed for the Miami Dolphins, turned out to be the game's leading ground-gainer while the passing duo of Grey Landry and Earl McCullough, both headed for the Detroit Lions, proved itself ready for pro football.

"You can't take a bunch of kids, no matter how good they are, and teach them pass defense in three weeks against Green Bay," said Coach Norm Van Brocklin.

"We got action out of the boys but couldn't get the execution," said Van Brocklin. "But we proved again that a team can run against the Packers."

But in the long run it was Packer passing superiority, spearheaded by Bart Starr and culminated by Boyd Dowler and Carroll Dale that proved the undoing of the Stars before a crowd of 68,917.

Starr completed touchdown passes of 20, 36 and 13 yards to Dale, and in between he used Dowler and Elijah Pitts as receivers in setting up Green Bay's scoring arsenal.

Gary Beban of UCLA headed for the Washington Redskins, clicked to the Southern California speedster with a seven-yard strike in the third quarter. Landry, a Massachusetts product, hit McCullough with a 24-yard scoring pass in the fourth quarter.

KANSAS CITY, Kan. AP - James Martin of Notre Dame, Ind., won the 20-gauge championship in the world skeet shooting tournament Thursday by breaking 207 straight targets in a shoot-off.

Changing Rodeo Scene

"This is the way a cowboy used to be: He rolled his own smokes, drank his whisky from the bottle. He cursed, fought, roped, rode, wrestled steers and fixed a windmill.
On the rodeo circuit he was a curly wolf and he had to do it all - ride, rope, bulldog, etc., - to make a living.
That is what Jim Trinkle, sports columnist for the Fort Worth, Tex., Star-Telegram, wrote in a recent column when a professional rodeo cowboy Association rodeo was in town. But Trinkle is aware of the changing rodeo scene, and he continued:
"This is the cowboy now: He's a college man and does... commercials. He takes a splash of soda in his scotch (make it with a twist of lemon, ma'am) and in the rodeo business he's a specialist.
"Competition is so keen," says steer wrestler Jack Roddy, "that you find most guys going for one event. The purses are so good nowadays that specialists are the rule.

"There's a cowboy here who's one of the best bareback bronc riders in the country. But we wouldn't let him ride in one of the parades because we were afraid he'd fall off his horse.
He's used to holding on to that bareback bronc rigging and riding a certain way. It's not like sittin' a horse."
Jack has ridden the bucking horses; straddled the steers, too. But it was like trying to stand a piece of spaghetti on end. He stands 6-5. So he's a bulldogger, period.
"I've got too much body to control on a bronc," he said. "Most steer wrestlers are big - like myself, Jim Bynum and John Hatley. Bronc riders are little."
Jack is 30 years old. You might say he has been living a dream for 28 years. He got his first pony on his dad's San Jose, Calif., ranch when he was two.
"I never wanted to be anything except a cowboy," he said. "We've got two nice bars in San Francisco and I don't have to do this for a living. But I'd like to win another championship."
In high school he drew horses in art class. His phrase to describe his thoughts then is "I'd sit around in class and rope my boot." Most of his waking thoughts homed in on saddle leather and a good horse.
Rodeoing has come a lot of miles and a few million dollars since Roddy won the all-around intercollegiate championship and college steer wrestling title at Cal Poly in 1959.
"Harley May set the money-winning record with $19,000 in 1954," he said. "Ten years later C. R. Boucher broke the record, but only by $400. I won $22,400 bulldogging in '66 and Roy Duval broke my record last year with $30,300. Larry Mahan won $52,000 as all-around champion last year, and that's the way the money has jumped up. We've got 10 million people coming to see us, and there's $3.5 million in purses.

"Cowboying has changed. We're not a bunch of drinkers, fighters and tobacco chewers. If a guy writes a hot check, he's going to get suspended. We've got a rule book and we're going to keep the sport clean."
Roddy is a director in the Rodeo Cowboys Association. He wouldn't trade it for a seat in the White House. There is a certain nobility about a man who is dead sure that his station in life is the best there is. Jack Thomas Roddy does.
"This sport," he said, "is plumb independent. I've got a boy and I'd like for him to be a cowboy. People like cowboys... cowboys don't have a bunch of agents and lawyers like other athletes. They don't have bed checks.
"This hat cost me $50 and I got on a pair of boots worth $120. My clothes are tailor-made in Denver, but they're cowboy clothes. I'm a cowboy and I want people to know I'm a cowboy. I'm proud to be a cowboy."
Adding to Trinkle's column, the R. C. A. said today Roddy has taken complete command in the early 1968 race for the steer wrestling crown.
When Roddy won the title in 1966, he had pocketed $6,223 after the Redbluff, Calif., rodeo in mid-April.
Roddy's money has been won with skills as scientific as Billy Casper's touch with a putter. Swooping down from a horse to the horns of a 700 pound steer running 30 miles an hour or better, bringing the animal to a halt and then to the ground - all in eight seconds or less - is not child's play.
For a better look at the subject attend next week's Jaycee Bootheel rodeo, starting Thursday.

Holtzman Cools St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP)—There's a change in the way Ken Holtzman is pitching for the Chicago Cubs, and something familiar about the way the other clubs are not hitting him.
Holtzman, the Cubs' polished lefty, polished off the St. Louis Cardinals on two hits Friday night to lead Chicago to a 3-0 victory. It was Holtzman's third straight shutout, something that seems to be habit-forming for National League pitchers this year, and it was the fourth straight victory for the Cubs.
It all came about because of the change, or more correctly, the change-up.
"Concentration and a changeup," Manager Leo Durocher said, was the secret to Holtzman's string.
"He's worked hard to develop the change-up. He worked with (pitching coach Joe) Becker on it."
He did, indeed, Becker said, adding "the difficult part was to throw it with the same motion."
The swift lefty threw it with stunning success through the first five innings during which time no Cardinal got a hit.
Julian Javier finally broke through with a single in the sixth.

Tim McCarver added another hit in the seventh.
That was it, at least as far as the Cardinal hitting was concerned. "It was the best game I ever pitched," Holtzman (8-7) said. "I might have had better stuff in other games, but as far as smartness and strategy was concerned, it was my best game."
While Holtzman was showing off his smarts and strategy, the Cubs hit Larry Daster (8-7) for all their runs in the fifth inning.
Randy Hundley opened the inning with a single. Then Jim Hickman, Aldolph Phillips and Holtzman singled for two runs. Ron Willis came in to relieve and after a couple of outs, including a sacrifice, Billy Williams was intentionally walked to load the bases. Ron Santo was unintentionally walked to drive in the third run.
And Holtzman kept showing the Cardinals his smarts.
The way Durocher explained it: "He's not just playing catch with Hundley any more. He is a pitcher now. He's using more finesse."
In their effort to return to winning form today, the Cardinals scheduled Ray Washburn (10-3) to take the mound against the Cubs' Bill Hands (11-6).

Cairo Takes Two

CHARLESTON -- Cairo's entry into the Babe Ruth invitational baseball tournament walked away with the two big prizes last night as they defeated the host, 4-2, for the championship and won the Sportsmanship award.
Charleston out hit the winners 6-4, but Cairo took advantage of the hosts' miscues for their runs and the title.
Steve Carlisle led Charleston in the hitting department with a two for three showing at the plate, including a solo homer for his team's first tally.
Gov. Warren E. Hearnes presented the trophies.
Charleston will be host a 9 and 10 year old tournament Aug. 12-18.

NEW YORK AP - Dukla of Czechoslovakia was selected today to oppose the Israeli National team in an international soccer exhibition match Sunday Sept. 15 at Yankee Stadium.
Dukla, the 10-time Czechoslovakian soccer champion, last appeared in the United States three years ago, placing second in the International Soccer League's Challenge Cup. The Czechs won the title four straight times from 1961-64.
BALLSTON SPA. N. Y. AP - One of the problems in the race was in keeping the entries from devouring each other.
The contest, held not far from Saratoga Raceway, was won by the big green racing frog, who outdistanced such other speedsters as beetles, moles, toads, garter snakes and large ants.

REMOTE-CONTROL operation of a mine-detecting jeep which allows "driver" to remain at a safe distance is seen in this artist's concept. Prototype models of the control system are being developed by Ryan Aeronautical Co.

SYMBOLIC of a rumored offensive by the enemy is this military statue in front of the South Vietnamese National Assembly building in Saigon. The government building could be the target of an attack said to be in the planning stages by the Viet Cong.

Canadians Serve in U.S. Army

The Prayer from The Upper Room

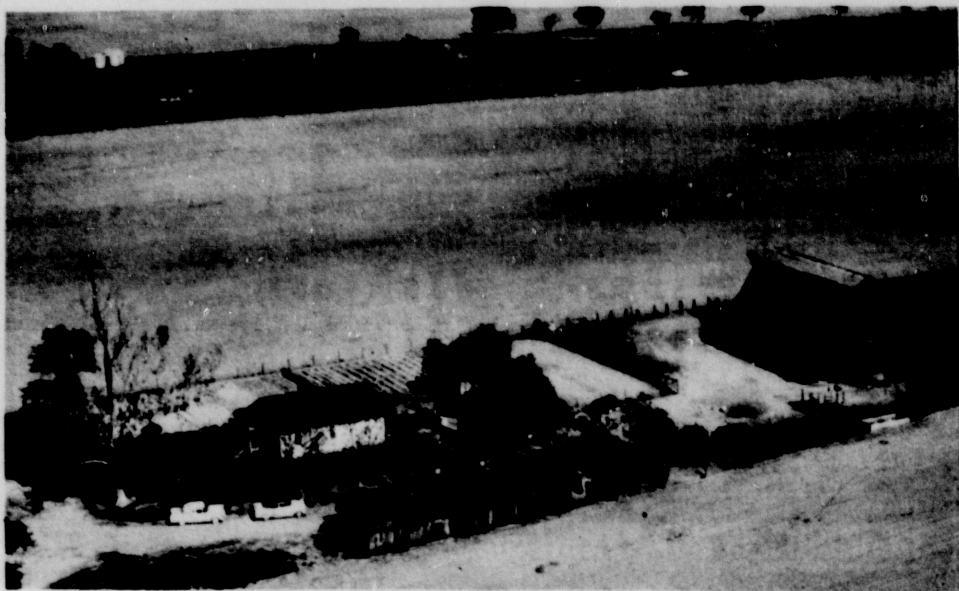

He gave some... apostles, and some, prophets; and some, club has endorsed these evangelists; and some pastors and teachers. (Ephesians 4:11) PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, grant us more of Thy spirit so that we may see clearly the task which Thou hast given us. Help us to be faithful in our Christian duties in order that Thy church may carry the message of eternal life in each heart. In the name of Jesus. Amen.

Four Campaign Endorsements

The Southeast Missouri chapter of the Missouri Men's and Women's club has endorsed these candidates: True Davis for U. S. Senator, John Havis for U. S. representative, Norman Anderson for attorney general and John Carpenter for Scott county coroner, Louis Wiggins, president, reported. Some historians believe Portugal was the ancient country of Lusitania.

Ann Landers

Kids' Beefs Called Nonsense

Dear Ann Landers: For crying in the grog, will you please quit wasting valuable newspaper space on those squirrely teen-age "problems." The kids who write have a different beef every five minutes - especially the girls - they sound as if the world is coming to an end. I'll bet by the time their letters appear in print they have forgotten who the clown was they were writing about. In the past two weeks I've read nonsense from a sinner who complained about not getting fed while on the job, a boring thing from a girl whose parents fight all the time and a stupid request for a cure for acne. You've also printed letters from kids whose friends are shoplifters and smoke pot. Such letters should not get space in your column. It makes the writer feel important.

Please use your brains on the adults who need your help. Ann. The punks can manage for themselves. Besides, they probably don't listen to you anyway. --STEADY ANN FAN

Dear Steady: Thanks for your point of view. Here's someone else's:

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a teen reader who would like to make a request. Please, Ann, make sure there is at least one teen-age problem in your column every day. We teens are faithful readers and when we get passed over completely we feel very let down, like ignored. Many teen-agers have no one to confide in. Your column is a wonderful place to unload without fear of humiliation or embarrassment. We also learn a lot from the kids who have made mistakes and written to say so. So please, Ann, pay more attention to us. We really need you. -- TRUE BLUE TO YOU

Dear True: I can't promise, but I will try to publish one teen-age letter every day. Thanks for your vote of confidence.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the wife who complained because she and her husband must go visit her 79-year-old mother - in-law "several times a year." She said the old lady lives 140 miles away and the trips are a big, fat bore. My mother-in-law lives two blocks away and she drives me and my husband nuts. She thinks nothing of telephoning at 7:30 in the morning and asking him to go get her a pint of coffee cream or a loaf of bread. And no matter where she goes, he has to drive her.

I hope the woman who complained sees this letter and realizes how lucky she is. I'd be happy to go visit her mother-in-law "several times a year" if she'd play hand maiden to my mother - in-law around the clock. --WORN OUT

Dear worn: Sorry I can't arrange the switch but thanks for writing.

Confidential to Why Am I Mad?: You are mad because she denied you of solitude without providing you with company. Your neighbor had no right to bring over a pack of bores. Tell her if she values your friendship she will not pull that stunt again.

422 Apply for Absentee Ballots

CHARLESTON -- County Clerk Arthur Lee Goodin said his office has received 422 applications for absentee ballots for the Aug. 6 primary election. Fifty-five of these have been returned. In addition, 65 war ballots have been requested and 41 have been returned.

If You Were the Judge

Loss of Jail Cell Key Not Robbery

By Jack Strauss, L.L.B.

Jail-bird Barney had a phobia about being in jail. Sentenced to three months in the pokey, he immediately strained his brain in an effort to figure how he could get out.

Finally, he came up with a plan. He staged a fight with a prison guard during which he "lifted" the key to his cell from the distracted fist flailing guard. Unfortunately for Barney, however, the guard didn't remain distracted for long. Missing the key, he searched until he found it, of all places, under Barney's pillow.

The result? Freedom - seeking Barney was charged with robbery, to wit: taking the guard's cell key.

"The guy's a crook," the guard complained to the judge. "He can't be trusted."

"I didn't steal his key," was Barney's answer. "The fact is, I only borrowed it. He would have gotten it back."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict cagy Barney of robbery?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that "robbery" requires the intent to permanently deprive someone of their property. In this case, the judge pointed out, it was unlikely that Barney intended to permanently deprive the guard of his key since it was no use to Barney unless he intended to stay in jail, which was also unlikely.

Soviet Book Claims

Hitler and Mistress

Died of Poisoning

NEW YORK (AP) - Adolf Hitler and his mistress, Eva Braun, died of self-administered cyanide poisoning according to a book by a former Soviet intelligence officer to be published today, the New York Times reported.

The book, "The Death of Adolf Hitler," by Lev Aleksandrovich Bezymensky, discloses for the first time details of a Soviet autopsy on the Hitler and Braun bodies, 23 years after the postmortem was performed, the Times said.

The Times story, by Harrison E. Salisbury, said the Soviet account of Hitler's death contradicts earlier versions, including those of William L. Shirer and H. R. Trevor-Roper. Both historians concluded that Hitler shot himself after shooting his wife of one day, Eva Braun.

Churchill Memorial

Visitors Hail From

All But One State

FULTON, Mo. (AP) - The Winston Churchill Memorial at Westminster College in Fulton says only one state - Vermont - now remains unlisted on its registration book after a tourist from New Hampshire visited the memorial Wednesday.

Memorial officials announced earlier it had had visitors from all 50 states except Vermont and New Hampshire. An alert service station attendant in Fulton noted a New Hampshire license tag on a car that stopped at the station. He told memorial attendants and directed them to it.

The New Hampshire visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Tony Yetka, of 3 Hillside Avenue, Berlin, New Hampshire. The couple had been to the Lake of the Ozarks attending a convention of insurance salesmen.

Another visitor to the memorial yesterday added Northern Ireland to the list of visitors from 13 foreign countries that have visited the memorial.

Carpenters are finishing three display windows in the Graber store soon to open on Front street and the interior of the large room has been refinished in white.

30 years ago August 3, 1938 C. L. Proffit, father of Mrs. Clay Mitchell of this city, died suddenly Monday morning of a heart attack in Oklahoma City, Okla., where he lived, a telegram informed relatives here. He was 69 years old.

Wednesday morning, August 17, the marriage of Miss Margaret Barth and William Corrigan will be solemnized at the St. Roch's Church in St. Louis. After a motor trip along the St. Lawrence River, Mr. and Mrs. Corrigan will return to Sikeston to reside.

20 years ago August 3, 1948 Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Buchanan, 518 South Kingshighway, will celebrate their 53rd wedding anniversary Saturday by spending "just another day" at their South

DEMOCRAT

With a Record of Leadership
Will Be a Great

Lieutenant Governor

"... as Circuit Attorney, Edward L. Dowd fought organized crime and drove the Capone race wire service out of business." (St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

"Dowd's chief opponent is William Morris of Kansas City. Morris is actively supported by Alex Presta, former convict, and Nick Civella, national underworld figure, both of Kansas City; and also the Steamfitters Union of St. Louis." (St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

"On the basis of his fine record as a public official and his progressive attitude on vital state problems, Edward L. Dowd deserves the Democratic nomination for Lt. Governor of Missouri." (St. Louis Globe-Democrat)

Dowd is firmly opposed to gun registration laws!

Corporate Farming Inroads Found Small

WASHINGTON (AP) — Large corporate farms have not made serious inroads into the traditional family style of American agricultural production, says a new report by the Department of Agriculture. The survey is a preliminary report on corporate farming in 22 states. It was ordered last fall by Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman and released Friday.

than one per cent of the commercial farms in the area, operate less than seven per cent of the land and sell about four per cent of the farm products, the study shows.

Further, more than 70 per cent of the corporations found were family-owned, including many family type farms which have incorporated for business reasons," the report said.

Large-scale, corporation agriculture has caused concern among many who claim that huge "conglomerate" farming corporations could spell doom for family-type operations.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., who has been investigating corporate agriculture for the Senate small business monopoly subcommittee, said the survey shows corporate farming is growing steadily and that more information is needed.

"No one suggests that corporation farming has already taken over American agriculture. But this report confirms the fact that the trend is increasing rapidly," he said in a statement.

A total of 6,700 corporation units are farming about 40 million acres of land in the 22 states. About one-third operated nonfarm activities in addition, the survey found.

Nearly 60 per cent of the 400 largest corporations were family owned.

DAVID ROLWING

FRIEND OF AGRICULTURE

With agricultural interests of his own, including farm land and a family-owned grain elevator and cotton gin, David Rolwing has deep personal concern for and first-hand experience with the problems of Southeast Missouri farmers.

During his eight years as a Representative, David Rolwing has served constantly on the House Agriculture Committee, and has sponsored successful legislation to improve the lot of farm families and agri-business. These laws include such measures as one making it a felony to set fire to fields, timber, or range land belonging to another person; the law establishing the state grain warehouse licensing act; and many others. In Congress he will seek assignment to the Agriculture Committee.

DAVID ROLWING

With agricultural interests of his own, including farm land and a family-owned grain elevator and cotton gin, David Rolwing has deep personal concern for and first-hand experience with the problems of Southeast Missouri farmers.

During his eight years as a Representative, David Rolwing has served constantly on the House Agriculture Committee, and has sponsored successful legislation to improve the lot of farm families and agri-business. These laws include such measures as one making it a felony to set fire to fields, timber, or range land belonging to another person; the law establishing the state grain warehouse licensing act; and many others. In Congress he will seek assignment to the Agriculture Committee.
